Leslie Haines was born on April 5, 1915. We have no knowledge of his early life except that he trained as a teacher and during the second world war he worked as a non-combatant in the fire-fighting and ambulance services in Liverpool. These experiences and his own conviction of the cruelty and uselessness of war led him to full pacifism and he found support in this first in the Quaker meeting at Bicester and later at Romford, where he joined the Society of Friends.(1) As a teacher his subjects were science, biology and health education but for over twenty years he arranged exchange visits between children in the Colchester district and in Geingen, West Germany. He also encouraged his pupils to join junior Red Cross companies and to engage in other Red Cross work.

For the latter part of his life he lived at West Mersea where he became a parish councillor and a founder member of the West Mersea Museum in which he took a great interest. Later on he became warden of the nature reserve on May Island in the Colne Estuary. He served his Monthly Meeting as an elder, as assistant clerk and as subscription treasurer for many years.(2) He also served on the Friends Education Council.(3)

During the last few years he suffered from continual illness but with his wife's support continued to live for the quality of life and not for length of years, so he was able to keep up with his Quaker service and his love of boating.

He died on October 26, 1980 having attended meeting on that day and having also ministered during that meeting. He was aged 65.

HAINES, Margaret ~~Wistar~~ (1729-1793) born Wistar

Born 1mo. (Mar) 26, 1729. Daughter of Caspar and Catharine Wistar of Germantown. She was an elder of Market street meeting. Possessed of singular energy and efficiency, able to attend to many things at once, her capabilities seemed to be developed by grace. She discovered almost by intuition cases of suffering and need, and her benevolence knew no distinction of class. She was sympathetically able to provide for the wants of her friends less amply endowed with material comforts than herself, and especially for Friends travelling in the ministry. Her delicacy of bestowal was as great as her ability to provide.

When the awful outbreak of yellow fever occurred in the autumn of 1793, she and her husband gave themselves unreservedly to the relief of the suffering, and both fell victims of the disease. She died 10mo. 3rd and her very intimate friend, Rebecca Jones wrote to her children Caspar and Catharine Haines, on the morning of her death, only three weeks after that of their father:

'I hear that all is well with your dear parent and my truly precious friend. My sympathy is renewed with you, who feel like my own children. You will, I trust, be helped now, in the needful hour, and if, by my coming down, I could render you any material service, I would run all the risks. Don't think at all about me; the Lord hath helped hitherto, and I bless his holy name.' Only a few days later, R. Jones herself was struggling for her life, which was spared.

HAINES, Reuben (1728-1793)
also WBE

Son of Josiah Haines (d.1728) and Martha, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Hudson) Burr. Martha Burr was the younger sister of Elizabeth Burr, who married Samuel Woolman. Reuben Haines and John Woolman were therefore first cousins, their mothers being sisters. Martha Haines, as widow, married Timothy Matlack (d. 1752) and became the mother of the famous 'Fighting Quaker', Timothy Matlack, II of Revolutionary fame. There was a further relationship, for Josiah Haines was a grandson of the immigrant ancestor, Richard Haines who, with his wife Margaret, came from Aynhoe, Northamptonshire, England, in 1682 and died at sea, following his son John, who had accompanied John and Ann Borton from the same place to America 1679 and who married their daughter Esther, in 1684. Esther's sister Elizabeth married John Woolman, another neighbour in England, in the same year (1684) and they became the grandparents of John Woolman, the preacher. There are notices of John Haines (Vol.29, 268) and of his wife, Esther. (Vol. 38, 339) in 'The Friend' Phila. He 'was an appointed elder and a zealous man.' Another complication for the genealogist lies in the fact of the marriage of another sister of Elizabeth and Martha Burr, to Caleb Haines, brother to Josiah Haines. Caleb Haines and Sarah Burr were married in 9mo. 1719. In the above brief family history is found an excellent example of the marriage intricacies of the old Quaker - and in fact many other- immigrant settlers in the new country of America. Caleb and Sarah Haines removed from Haddonfield to Burlington Monthly Meeting 12mo. (February) 11, 1744, with two daughters, Elizabeth and Patience. Reuben Haines (called 'The Elder') born 1mo. (March) 1st, 1728, lived in Philadelphia, where he inherited the brewhouse at Fourth and Market Streets from his step-father, Timothy Matlack. He lived on the north side of High (as Market street was then called), just below Fourth. He married Margaret, daughter of Caspar and Catharine (Jansen-Johnson) Wistar, 4mo. 24, 1760. Margaret Wistar Haines inherited the beautiful old house, still the pride of Germantown, known as 'Wyck', which is yet in possession of the family. Reuben Haines was a good business man, as well as a pillar of the church, although he was not a preacher, but served many years as an elder. Their town house was a centre of Quaker hospitality, and always the home of John Woolman when he was in Philadelphia. He appears to have been Woolman's financial adviser. He died in the dreadful year of 1793, (September) a victim to his heroic efforts to relieve the yellow fever plague. [Information from Reuben Haines, and Caspar W. Haines, of 'Wyck', Germantown, &c.]

HAISTWELL, Edward (1658?-1708/9)

Edward Haistwell was a son of Thomas Haistwell, of Orton, Co. Westmorland, and a merchant living in Scotts Yard, St Mary Bothaw, Cannon Street. In 1687 he married Rachel Marsh, daughter of Richard Marsh, of London. He was employed by George Fox as an amanuensis from March, 1677 to June, 1678. The Itinerary Journal records several visits to Scotts Yard and on one occasion Fox, with Lower, Parker and Robinson, dined at his house (p.154 where however there is some correction in the MS). In 1695/6 a son was born to E. and R. Haistwell and named Edward. It was probably this son whose ex-libris book-plate was offered for sale in a catalogue sent out by Puttick in 1911 - 'Edward Haistwell of the Middle Temple, 1718'. 'On 16 January, 1744, died Edw: Haistwell, Esq., Director of the SS Company' (Gent's. Magazine); in 1781, 'Mr Benjamin Bartlett, Dr J.C. Lettsom and Edward Haistwell, Esq., were admitted Fellows of the Society of Antiquaries' (Gent.'s Magazine, quoted Jnl FHS xiii).

In the will of Richard Marsh (Ms in Friends House) dated 20 November 1703, are the following bequests: 'To my two grandchildren Rachel Jones and Edward Haistwell £1000 apiece at Marriage or 21; to Thomas Haistwell and Anthony Haistwell £10 apiece; to every servant living with my son and daughter Haistwell at my decease 40/s. apiece; the residue to my daughter Rachel Haistwell' Overseers of the will included 'Edward Haistwell my son in law'. Edward Haistwell, Senr., died 4.xi.1708/9 aged 50, and was buried in Schoolhouse Lane, Ratcliff.

b. ca 1772. Raised an Episcopalian in his home near Petersburg, Virginia.

apprenticed to Joseph Budd, a hatter, on Front St., in Philadelphia. Attended a few times gatherings at the Meeting House on Market Street.

1793 at length made application to William Savery for admission to membership in the Soc. of Friends.

His widowed aunt lived on Race Street. Her name was Mills and she and seven members of the family were stricken with yellow fever. C.H. devoted himself to caring for them and took the fever himself. He died of it as did two of the other family members.

HALDEN, Enoch (1819-1875)

Enoch Halden was born at Stafford in 1819, his parents, William and Alice Halden being Wesleyans. He joined the Society in 1851, when the closed meeting house at Stafford was reopened, and was a diligent and regular attender at meetings for worship and discipline. He married in 1855.

Enoch Halden was made an elder in 1874, and, though not a recorded minister he was not infrequently heard in meetings. 'His communications were very acceptable to his friends, and on several occasions he was liberated by his meeting to accompany friends in the ministry in visiting meetings and holding public meetings in neighbouring counties.'

He died in Tenth month 1875.

HALE, Rhoda (1809-1895)

Rhoda Hale was born on 4 May 1809 in Colne, Essex. Her parents were of the labouring class and attended the established church. Rhoda was first a scholar and then a teacher in Sunday School but as she matured, the forms and ceremonies of the Church failed to meet her needs. While a girl she attended a public meeting held by John Kirkham a minister of the Society of Friends and she was deeply impressed. Not wishing to annoy her father it was some years before Rhoda Hale regularly attended the Friends Meeting at Earls Colne. Convinced that the principles of Friends were in accordance with the Bible, in 1841 she applied for membership and was received by Coggeshall Monthly Meeting.

Rhoda Hale earned her living by Straw plaiting and on meeting days began ~~her~~ her work at 5 a.m. so that the family resources should not suffer by her absence. In after years she was dependent on help of Friends.

Rhoda Hale was a diligent attender at Monthly, Quarterly and Yearly Meetings and for more than 25 years she held cottage meetings in the surrounding districts when the Bible tracts and hymns were read, interspersed with times of devotion and prayers. She held a class for children in Scripture, and a weekly class for older girls. Her own little room was often filled to over-flowing. As strength declined she kept much in her cottage where many enjoyed Christian fellowship and communion.

Rhoda Hale died on 6 January 1895 aged 86

HALES, W.T. fl. 1860-1875

A man in humble circumstances when he joined the Society of Friends.

During the Civil War he was conscripted and refused military duty. He was ordered to be shot. His hands were tied together from daybreak to dark, and so were his feet. He was kept on a bread and water diet. He was "bucked down". He was tied to a tree during the battles with the hope on the part of the Southern army officers that Hales would be shot, thus disposing of their problem.

At the fall of Richmond he was marched by the retreating army quite near to his own home in Petersburg, and he managed to escape.

1875, released by request. (No evidence to back up this assertion by WBE is found in the Cartland book. B.C.)

HALFORD, John (-1718/19?)

John Halford is stated to have been 'a lawyer an ancient acquaintance' (P.274). His house still stands (see illustration in Emmott's Story of Quakerism, 1908, from a painting in Friends House). For a description of the Manor House at Arscott, see Fea, Secret Chambers and Hiding Places, 1901, p.226, where the author gives the local tradition that 'old Guy Fawkes, the first Quaker' [!] was hidden in a secret place in one of the gables, but adds, 'Fox was not the sort of man to have recourse to concealments and owe his escape to a "priest's hole".'

Note by N. Penney in Fox's Journal, Camb. ed. 1911 vol.2 p.447

HALFORD, Edwin (1837-1914)

Edwin Halford was born in North London in 1857. He was educated in London and also, for four years, at the Friends School at Great Ayton. In 1913 he was President of its Old Scholars' Association. Leaving school, he was employed by Smith and Beck and stayed with the firm for over fifty years.

In 1860 he married Sarah Jane Smith (1): there were two children (2). When he was about thirty three he married, for his second wife, his cousin Jane Martin, who survived him with three of their four children. (3)

Edwin Halford was one of the first to enter Holloway Meeting House and he remained a member of that meeting for over fifty years. He was for many years a valued Overseer and later an Elder, attending morning and evening meetings most regularly, in spite of his age.

His constant devotion to the Temperance cause came first of his many activities. When young, and for many years, he was associated with the Band of Hope at the Bedford Institute; later on he worked with the Good Templars at Holloway until his death.

He was always cheerful and interested in everyone he met. His circle of friends was wide and he always 'gave evidence of a gracious spirit under constant subjection to his Divine Influence'.

He died on 11 December 1914, aged 77 years: his death was the result of a street accident.

HALHEAD, Miles (1614?-)

Miles Halhead lived at Mountjoy (pronounced Mungey locally) near Underbarrow, Westmorland. He was converted in 1652 and in the following year became a travelling preacher; he journeyed to many places in England, Scotland and Ireland. His wife, Ann Halhead, at first opposed his work, saying at times 'Would to God I had married a drunkard! then I might have found him at the ale-house; but now I cannot tell where to find my husband' (quoted by Janney, Hist. i. 148). Halhead frequently suffered imprisonment: with Thomas Salthouse he lay for about a year in jail at Plymouth and Exeter, having been charged at Exeter Sessions, July, 1655, with 'using provoking words against George Brookes' (Swarth. MSS.; Wounds of an Enemie, 1656). His death took place before 1690 as his name appears in Richardson's List of Ministers Deceased, 1689 (MS in Friends House)

Miles Halhead was of Mountjoy, Underbarrow, near Kendal; the house still stands; near by is Halhead Hall. Convinced by Fox in 1652, worked largely with Thomas Salthouse in Devon (cf. their Wounds of an Enemie in the House of a Friend, 1656). His imprisonment at Appleby in 1653 (cf. Pearson, Parlt., 4) is not recorded in his racy auto-biography, Sufferings. His wife's complaint, 'I would to God I had Married a Drunkard, I might have found him in the Alehouse; but I cannot tell where to find my Husband' (ib., 8) is often quoted inaccurately, as in C.J., i. 396; eventually she was brought to a resigned frame of mind by the death of 'my only Son, Myles Halhead, all the Joy and Comfort I had in all the World' (ib., 9). Left £1 by John Storey (probably his second cousin; cf. Rigbye, Storeys, illf.) cf. 110 and pedigree facing 116). cf. C.J., i. 396

HALL, Agnes (1688-1762) born Kidd

Agnes Kidd was the daughter of William and Dorothy Kidd of Settle in Yorkshire, and was educated in the Society as her parents were both Friends of esteem.

Early in life she showed both 'religious inclination and filial affection'; she helped her mother in her widowhood to bring up a large family, as her father died when she was about 17. She had a 'meek and quite disposition', was diligent and a person of few words. At about the age of 37 she began to minister in public seasonably, helpfully and sweetly, especially appealing to younger people. She was a diligent attender at Friends' meetings, but never travelled far from home. She was knowledgeable and helpful in business matters, and concerned for the welfare of the Society.

She died 1 August 1762 aged 76 years, a minister for 40 years, and was buried in the Friends burial ground at Settle

Alice Hall was a member of Marsden Monthly Meeting, Lancs. She was called to the Ministry about her twenty fourth year, and remained a faithful worker to the end of her life.

"She was a Person generally beloved, both by Friends and others that were acquainted with her, constantly evidencing, both by Example and Precept, that the Honour of God and the Good of Souls were her chief Concern. In Meetings she was diligent in attending to the Holy Spirit, and her Doctrine was exceedingly edifying. She was for several years infirm of Body, but strong and fervent in Spirit."

She died 3 September 1755, aged about seventy three years, and a Minister about fifty years.

HALL, Alice (1708/9-1762) born Fetherstone

Alice Fetherstone was born 30 xi.1708 [i.e. Jan 1708/9] at Blackhouse in Allendale in Northumberland, the daughter of John and Isabel Fetherstone, who brought her up carefully in a Friend home. She became stabilized and settled in the truth, and received a gift of the ministry which she developed humbly and obediently, always being cautious not to minister until she felt "truth to open her way".

Before her marriage she visited Friends twice in Ireland, and in most parts of England and Scotland. Her life was lived in consistence with her public testimony.

On 10 June 1743 she married Isaac Hall, and she still continued visiting in the ministry and paid a third visit to Ireland. In 1760 she received a renewed invitation to visit the church in America; this distant visit was a great trial to her family to whom she was a loving wife and good mother, but they felt it right that she should go. She landed in America in October 1761 and visited many Meetings, but when she had almost finished her visits she was taken seriously ill, and died in Philadelphia 6 October 1762, aged 54, a minister for 32 years, and was buried in Friends burial ground in Philadelphia.

HALL, David (1683-1756)

David Hall was born at Skipton in Craven on the 22.x.[December] 1683, his parents being Friends. A severe attack of smallpox impaired his health as a boy, and he was sent to the Free School at Skipton when he was about fourteen years old. Later his father opened a boarding school at which he taught, many Friends sending their children from different parts of England (1).

About the year 1711 he came forth in publick Testimony, and later preached at Skipton and at Keighley on market days in the open streets (2). He visited parts of England, Scotland and Ireland, and kept a journal of his travels. This Journal and various Epistles written to Monthly and Quarterly Meetings were later published.

"He was very weighty, plain and pertinent in his Testimony, even to the meanest Capacities, not affecting to be thought learned, well knowing the Insufficiency of human Literature and acquired Parts in a Gospel Ministry."

He died 16 September 1756, aged about seventy two years, and a Minister about forty five years.

Jane Gummersall, the daughter of Joseph and Abigail Gummersall, was born about the year 1803(1). She was for several years an energetic and much valued teacher at Wigton School. In 1840 she became the second wife of Thomas Hall (1789-1867 qv), who was then superintendent of the school; there were no children(2). Thomas Hall had two daughters by his first wife, to whom Jane became a kind and sympathising step-mother.

She retired from teaching on her marriage, but she did not waste her time or her energy, which were largely employed in visiting in her own locality the fatherless and widows, and comforting the afflicted.

She died at Greysouthen, near Carlisle, after a painful illness, on 30 May 1864, at the age of sixty one(3).

HALL, John (1637-1719)

John Hall was born at Airton in Craven, Yorkshire, and educated as an Episcopalian. He was apprenticed to a tailor. Gervase Benson was instrumental in his convincement. 'He kept an Inn at Skipton for the Space of thirteen years, and kept his Authority nobly in the Truth while in that Place, not allowing Drunkenness, Singing, Dancing, Musick or Excess in his House, but bearing his Testimony faithfull against Intemperance, rul'd well his own House and kept it for necessary Accommodation' (from 'A Brief Recital', by his son, David Hall (1683-1756), Schoolmaster and Minister, of Skipton, in Memoirs of David Hall, 1758). In a letter from Paisley to M. Fell in 1656, Hall gives an account of his Scotch journey (Swarth. MSS.iv.64, 65) and there are records extant of the provision of money for clothes, a horse, some books and general expenses (ibid. i.276, 295).

A Friend had a Meeting near where he lived and he went. Finding the people sitting in silence, he went away. Returning, he heard G.B. declaring. Standing near the door, J.H. was so reached that the tears trickled down his cheeks.

At a later meeting. all sitting in silence, the Lord's power so seized upon him that he was broken down and was fully convinced of the Truth at that silent meeting, and he never turned his back upon it.

He found he could no longer put lace and finery on clothes, and so for a time he lost much of his custom. Was repeatedly imprisoned, and at one time had almost all his household goods taken from him, so that he was forced to borrow bedding for his wife, children and servants to lie upon.

John William Hall, the son of Isaac Hall (1793-1868 qv) and his wife Mary (born) of High Studden in Yorkshire, was born there on 28 January 1842(1), one of a family of ten children. His boyhood was solitary, spent in rambling on the moors with his dog for company and he developed a great love of nature. The nearest meeting house was two miles away and Issac Hall walked there with his children when they were old enough, enlivening the long walk with comments on the natural history of the countryside. Although the meeting for worship was nearly always silent, John Hall enjoyed both the walks with his father and the experience of the meeting. Visits from ministering Friends, among whom he remembered John Pease (1797-1868qv) and Joseph Bevan Braithwaite (1818-1905 qv) made a delightful break in the quiet home life and were eagerly anticipated.

When he was ten years old John was sent to Wigton School, where he proved something of a handful. In later years he enjoyed recalling details of pillow fights and apple pie beds and other ways in which he flouted authority. The early death of his mother left a great gap in his life, but his eldest sister Hannah was a blessing to the young family.

At the age of sixteen he began his working life in Sunderland with Wilson Brothers, where his interest in the Society of Friends was maintained. He was enabled regularly to attend monthly and quarterly meetings and his employers took a sympathetic interest in his development. When he was nineteen he moved to Thirsk in Yorkshire, to the employ of Bartholomew Smith (1814-1897 qv) whose daughter Mary Ann (1841-1911 qv) he married in 1867(2); there were six children, born between the years 1868 and 1878(3).

Apart from three years in Carlisle, he lived for sixty six years in Thirsk. While living in Sunderland he had become interested in adult school work and this interest continued, resulting in his starting an adult school in Thirsk. He exercised a powerful influence for good in the town. In spite of his business cares, which were sometimes a source of anxiety, he was a faithful supporter of the Society. He never slackened his attendance at meeting, even when in old age his children urged him to stay at home in cold weather. He used to invite ministering Friends to attend the meeting and he and his wife, and after her death his daughter, would entertain them in his hospitable home. His own ministry became more frequent and of increasing power as the years passed and his counting house was a place where the furtherance of the kingdom of God was discussed.

He took a continued interest in the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society, succeeding his father-in-law as honorary secretary of the Thirsk Auxiliary and was presented with an inscribed copy of the Scriptures in recognition of his forty years' service. He was a great worker for peace and during the first world war conscientious objectors and friends of those in Northallerton Prison were always welcome at his home. He had a lively interest in politics, often taking the chair at meetings, his concern being always for national righteousness and progress, justice and freedom. He was an outspoken justice of the peace and while often in a minority of one his perseverance often resulted in the reversal of decisions which he considered to be wrong.

He was seriously ill in his eightieth year and realised that his powers of recuperation were not as great as they had been, but even then his mental and physical alertness prevented him from taking the care of his health which he should have done. John William Hall of Thirsk died on 2 March 1929, at the age of eighty seven(4).

HALL, Richard (1815-1881)

Richard Hall, the son of Joseph and Jane Hall of Alston in Cumberland, was born there on 3 May 1815(1). When he was about nine years old he was sent to Wigton School, where his parents shortly followed him, holding the offices of superintendent and housekeeper from 1826 to 1829. After leaving Wigton they settled at Waverton, about a mile from the school, where Richard also lived until a short time before his death. He retained a lively interest in the school, of which he was treasurer for many years; his counsel and help were much valued by those concerned with the administration of the school.

He was married in 1838 to Mary Williamson of Allonby(2) and there were eleven children(3).

He attended regularly at meetings for worship and discipline and was reverent in his conduct therein. His view of himself was humble, but he became a very useful member of the Society and of his meeting; he often represented his quarterly meeting at Yearly Meeting and at various conferences held in London, freely giving up his time in the service of Truth. He had been an overseer for some years and in 1856 was appointed an elder; he spoke briefly in the ministry, but what he had to say was deeply felt and had a solemn effect upon his hearers.

He was a constant and practical supporter of the temperance movement and gave much of his time to disseminating its principles among his neighbours. The peace testimony was also dear to him and in upholding it he felt it right to withhold from his payment of income tax that portion devoted to defraying the expenses of the Abyssinian war.

A minute of his monthly meeting testifies of him that "With simplicity and deep humility he strove to serve and honour the Lord, both in the exercise of his office as an Elder, and in the discharge of the daily duties of life. He was through Divine grace and example to the flock of watchfulness in conduct and conversation, and of firm allegiance to the cause of Truth."

He died very peacefully at Wigton on 17 October 1881(4), at the age of sixty six.

HALL, Richard Watson (1882-1935)

ALSO IN BE

Descended from a long line of north country Friends, Richard Watson Hall, son of Josiah and Jane Watson Hall, was born in February 1882 at Cockermouth. After his education at Cockermouth, Wigton and Bootham, York he was apprenticed to a grocer at Thirsk and was for a time at Barrow's stores in Birmingham in preparation for joining his father's business. In 1908 he married Frances Lilian Brooker of Toddell near Cockermouth.

During the war he served with the Friends Ambulance Unit and on the Glenart Castle Hospital Ship.

Although he retired from business in 1926 Dick Hall lived a full, active life writing and lecturing and introducing parties to his beloved Cumberland Fells and also to Switzerland and the Pyrenees through which he loved to tramp. His book "On Cumbrian Fells" and "The Art of Mountain Tramping" are amongst many writings in which he reflects his quiet faith in the ultimate goodness of life.

Many and varied movements and associations found in Dick Hall an enthusiastic supporter yet he still found time for much quiet work as an Overseer and Clerk to his Meeting at Cockermouth. To him the weekly Meetings for Worship were a responsibility and joy. Dick Hall, with his infectious smile and genius for friendship inspired many as he strove to attain the high ideal expressed in one of his familiar prayers.
"Teach us to live together in love and joy and peace; to check all bitterness, to disown discouragement, to practise thanksgiving, and to leap with joy to any task for others".

He died on the 13th February 1935.

Thomas Hall, the son of John and Hannah Hall of Little Broughton in Cumberland, was born there on 27 October 1789(1). In his early years he was very delicate and his life was despaired of, but he grew up to become a yeoman like his father(2). He was married in 1822 to Mary Whinney of Brigham in Cumberland(3) and there were two children(4). On his marriage he moved to Brigham and took up farming there.

He was a regular attender at meetings for worship and discipline, for which he was especially qualified. His wife died in 1835(5) and soon afterwards he believed himself called upon to work in the ministry. He began to pay private visits to members of his own meeting and a few years later he was recorded a minister by Pardshaw Monthly Meeting. He was often engaged in visiting small meetings in his own quarterly meeting area and also visited the sick and those who for various reasons had lost their membership of the Society.

When he retired from farming he was for some years superintendent of the Friends' School near Wigton, where in 1840 he was married to Jane Gummersall (1803?-1864 qv)(6); there were no children of his second marriage(7). His second wife died in 1864 and at the same time his health became very feeble. During his last two or three years his mind became at times clouded, but he died at peace at Overend, Greysouthen, on 29 April 1867, at the age of seventy seven(8).

HALLAM, Sarah (1805?-1875) born

Sarah Hallam, details of whose birth and parentage are not at present (1979) traced, was born about the year 1805(1) and was the wife of Jacob Hallam.

Her spiritual search was a long one. She attended Friends' meetings at intervals during her life, her husband accompanying her when he was alive, but it was not until after his death that she became a convinced Friend and was admitted into membership by Southwark Monthly Meeting in 1863(2).

In 1864 she left Southwark and moved into one of the almshouses set up by the Michael Yoakley Trust at 8 Yoakley's Buildings, Stoke Newington(3). She was very happy there, had set her small home in order and enjoyed great peace and tranquillity and a sense of profound thankfulness for the mercy of God. But she accidentally set fire to her clothes while in her kitchen and died from burns and shock a few hours later, on 30 June 1875 at the age of seventy(4).

Clucas Hallatt was born in about the year 1896 (1) the elder son of Garrison and J. Catherine (b.) Hallatt of Liverpool. We have no details of his early life but in 1926 he married Gwendolyn G.M.Bell at Barrow in Furness (2). The marriage was not according to Quaker usage but he appears to have joined the Society in about 1922,(3) although as a pacifist he had served in the Friends Ambulance during the first world war as he apparently also did during the second world war. He was a member of Liverpool meeting giving it and the monthly meeting devoted service as an elder and as MM Clerk.(4) He served the Monthly Meeting as registering Officer for thirty eight years from 1934 to 1972 and also as a Friend in charge of funeral arrangements and in both these services he was outstanding. He was a member of several Friends central committees (5). He had an unfailing unworldly charm and a great sense of humour. His wife became an invalid some years ago and he cared for her devotedly. He himself became ill and died after a long illness on October 6, 1980 aged 84. At the time of his death his wife was a patient in hospital.

HALLIDAY, William (1812?-1873)

William Halliday, details of whose birth and parentage are not at present (1978) traced, was born about the year 1812(1). He lived in Belfast and was an elder of his meeting.

In character he was firm and straightforward, but also simple and humble in his dealings with his fellows. He read and observed much and being gifted with a natural acuteness of perception, his knowledge of men was very considerable. He was an antiquary and possessed a rare and valuable library on a variety of subjects.

He was a useful and valued member of the Society and while alive to the advantages of progress, he loved the old ways and was deeply attached to the writings of early Friends. But he also encouraged Friends to introduce more recent publications to their families. He was a helpful member of committees on education and other subjects and seldom missed attending his own meeting, as well as visiting country meetings. He much enjoyed Ulster Quarterly Meeting and also sometimes attended London Yearly Meeting.

It was following a visit to London Yearly Meeting that he was suddenly taken ill and William Halliday of Belfast died on 15 June 1873, at the age of sixty one.

HAMBLETON, Margaret
HAMBLI, Loveday (1604?-1682)

sSe HAMILTON, Margaret

Loveday Hamblly lived at Tregangeva Farm, near St Austell, Cornwall, where is still a Friends' Burial Ground. No information is forthcoming respecting her ancestry or marriage, but she had been a zealous professor of religion long before her convincement by means of Thomas Cartis. She bore patiently sufferings and indignities and she was several times imprisoned (Extracts from State Papers, 1910). Her house, which she enlarged about 1676, was frequently used for meetings (Barclay, Letters, 1841, p.251). Several near relations also became Friends. Thomas Lower was her nephew. There was a John Hamblly imprisoned in Bodmin in 1659. Benjamin Coale, of Reading, was for some time a household servant to her, and perhaps Thomas Salthouse was in her employ. Some difficulty in connection with the disposal of her estate 'for the propagation of the Holy Truth' is detailed in the Jnl. F.H.S. iii.

Swarth. MSS especially iv. 185, letter from L.H. to George Fox, without date, but probably written while G.F. was ill at Reading in the autumn of 1659.

HAMILTON, John Alexander King (1900 - 1982)

John Hamilton was born at Ealing in 1900, the son of John H and Ethel (b. Tisdall) Hamilton.(1) He went to Bootham School from 1913 to 1917 (2) and at 17 in the first world war he served with the French Red Cross until old enough to be accepted by the Friends Ambulance Units as an ambulance driver in the front lines in France. His name appeared in citations for his courage and humanity. He married in 1928 Helen Eliza Bruce Kirk and there were two children of the marriage, Katherine Anne (1929) and David Ian (1931). His wife died in 1964.(3) He was a civil engineer particularly concerned with bridge building. During the second world war he insisted on a non-combatant role as instructor for the Royal Engineers in building Bailey bridges and pontoons. He was awarded the George Medal for dealing with unexploded bombs in London. He was greatly respected for his high professional standards and for his concern for others, he was a great traveller and family man who loved the countryside and had an abiding sense of the reality of the spiritual life. He was at different times a member of Great Ayton, Wandsworth and Edinburgh (Stafford St.) meetings.

He died on July 13, 1982. No age is given but he must have been around 82 years old.(5)

HAMILTON, Margaret

Margaret Hamilton (Hambleton). Among Swarth. MSS. (iv.217) there is a letter signed 'margret hamilton' dated from 'Eihr' in 1659 and addressed to George Fox, in which the writer asks for various 'bewkes' and is evidently much interested in the distribution of literature. It appears from A Testimony of the appearance of God, signed A.P. and placed by Joseph Smith under 'Parker, Alexander' that Margaret Hambleton was excommunicated 'by two parish Masters in the west of Scotland, to wit, one called Lewes Simorell, and one Hugh Archbull' because, among other things, 'she would not forsake the company of Seducers and Hereticks as they call them' (p.3)

One of the four daughters of William, second Duke of Hamilton (1616-1651) was Margaret (see Cal. S.P. Dom. 1656-7, 1658-9, 1660-1), but there was at least one other Lady Margaret.

The Scottish Registers contain the entry, 'Hamelton, Margrat, d.1696. iii.22, of Breadinghill - died in the Coget - buried at Plesance [Edinburgh] '.

HAMILTON, Mary Kathleen (1902 - 1976) b. Bowman.

M.
Mary Kathleen Bowman was born in 1902, at Moor Top, Ackworth, her parents were William Wilson and Edith Annie Bowman.(1) She was educated at Ackworth School and at The Mount and was a loyal supporter of the old scholars' activities, and enjoyed entertaining old friends and Friends of the Meeting.

In 1931 she married Wilfred Colin Hamilton (2) and they set up house first in Barnsley and then at Pocklington where they were attached to Clifford St. Meeting, York, until 1963. During the period 1963 - 1969 they moved to Bakewell(3) where she served as representative from Derby, Lincoln & Notts QM on Friends Service Council from 1963 - 1966.(4)

About In 1969 they moved to Malton, the Malton Meeting had fallen upon hard times and Kathleen with the help of her husband (5) set about its reorganisation, straightening the accounts and through invitations to their home and various social events Friends were drawn together so that the meeting grew in numbers and became well established.(6)

There were four children, all daughters, born between 1932 and 1944.(7)

In later life she suffered from ill health and while overcoming through her immense determination and courage the effects of two strokes she suffered a third as the result of which she died on April 11, 1976, aged 73.

HAMMERTON, Charles (1854-1894)

t/ Charles Hammerton was born at Maidstone on June 8 1854. As a boy he appeared delicate but as he grew older he became stronger and his love of play and dislike of restraint caused him to slip through his school days but little the better for them. His recollection of childhood was not very happy and when he became a father he said 'I want to put as much real happiness into the children's lives as possible; I do not want them to look back upon a childhood like my own.'

t/ As apprentice to a draper his duties brought him under wholesome discipline; but business over, he was free to go where he would and became mixed up with much more that was unprofitable. But the still small voice strove within him and the desire for union with some religious body arose. He was confirmed but failed to find satisfaction in the church. At the age of 22 he met a woman Friend who set him on the way and he began to attend Friends Meeting, both for worship and scripture reading. Here he found what he had been seeking. He was received into membership when 24 and two years later married Clara Jane Brown (1). There were two daughters (2). They were members of the small meeting at Maidstone (consisting of three aged Friends only when Charles Hammerton first attended!) to which their firm faith was instrumental in attracting further additions of sincere Christian people to the meeting, some of whom became members of it. Charles Hammerton was 'largely used in ministry in which he faithfully strove to turn all away from man to the full light of God's Holy Spirit within them'.

t/ It was Charles Hammerton's longing desire to be free from the demands of business to devote more time to direct Christian work but this was not to be. In 1892 he left Maidstone and settled in Coventry. His manner of teaching his children from every early childhood was beautiful in its simplicity and it met a happy response. All seemed well and full of promise but in 1894 a chill resulted in pleurisy and Charles Hammerton died on 13 November 1894 aged 40.

HANBURY, Charlotte (1830-1900)

Charlotte Hanbury, the daughter of Cornelius (1796-1869, qv) and Elizabeth (born Sanderson, 1793-1901, qv) Hanbury, was born at Paradise Row, Stoke Newington, on 10 April 1830 (1). Both her parents were Ministers with very wide sympathies. Her mother's genial and attractive religious outlook doubtless helped the daughter's development into the same direction.

Her early years were spent near London among the religious, scientific and philanthropic influences that centred round her home at Plough Court. Later the family moved to the Blackdown Hills in Somerset and their home became a centre of activity in its neighbourhood and for Christian workers from far and wide.

After 1886 she and her widowed mother lived with her brother, Cornelius, at Dynevor House, Richmond, Surrey. From there Charlotte set out to pay shorter or longer visits to her wide circle of friends engaged upon Christian work at home and abroad. She repeatedly visited prisoners in Morocco, bringing relief to them, and she also loved to visit the Swiss mountains.

Her life was an unusually bright, cheerful and unconventional one and she took pleasure in art, nature and science, sharing, too, the pleasures, cares and interests of others.

In her 59th year she learned that she was suffering from an incurable illness and this she faced with a calm and cheerful gladness, writing with deep confidence of God's upholding presence in her illness. She died on 22 October 1900 aged 70 years.

HANBURY, Cornelius (1796-1869)

Cornelius Hanbury, second son of Capel and Charlotte Hanbury was born at Ware, in Hertfordshire in 1796. From his youth he displayed great seriousness of mind and first spoke as a minister during a journey in the Eastern Counties which he undertook as a guide to two visiting American Friends, Hannah Field and Elizabeth Parker. He was recorded a minister in 1819.

In 1802 he married Mary, only child of William Allen, but she died shortly after the birth of their son in the following year. Three years later he married Elizabeth, youngest daughter of John Sanderson, a happy union which lasted till his death some forty years later. For many years he was often from home, travelling in the ministry. In 1826 he was appointed to be the escort and companion of Ann Alexander and Maria Middleton on a religious visit to Friends in Germany. In 1857 he removed from London to Wellington in Somerset, and spent much time in ministering to the sick and poor of the district. 'The happy influence of his loving spirit, warm sympathy and unselfish benevolence was largely felt by those with whom he associated'. He died on 7 March 1869 aged 73 years.

HANBURY, Elizabeth (1793-1901) born Sanderson

Elizabeth Sanderson was born in London in the year 1793, the daughter of John and Margaret Sanderson.

She was much influenced by her elder sister, Mary Sanderson, afterwards Mary Sylvanus Fox, and with her undertook much arduous work in ameliorating the condition of the prisoners in Newgate, following the work begun by Elizabeth Fry. For the whole of her life in London she continued to visit prisons and convict ships to bring order and discipline to the women prisoners and education to their children. She also took much interest in the Anti-Slavery movement.

In 1826 Elizabeth married Cornelius Hanbury, and their homes in Plough Court and Stoke Newington became centres for Friends visiting London.

Elizabeth Hanbury was recorded a minister in 1833.

In 1857 Cornelius and Elizabeth Hanbury removed to Wellington, Somerset, where their influence was of much help to the little meeting. Cornelius Hanbury died in 1869 and eighteen years later Elizabeth, with her daughter Charlotte removed to the home of her son Cornelius Hanbury at Richmond, Surrey,

'She never travelled much as a Minister, but her message was emphatically that of the Gospel, and characterized by clearness of expression and a good choice of words. While careful not to exceed her gift, she was diligent in its use, and her friends were often struck by the appropriateness of her communications'.

Elizabeth Hanbury died 31 October 1901, aged one hundred and eight years.

HANBURY, Mary (1736/7-1770) born Lloyd

Mary Lloyd, the daughter of Sampson Lloyd II (1699-1779 qv) and his second wife Rachel, born Champion, of Birmingham, was born there on 10.xii.1736(i.e. February 1736/7)(1) and was the only one of Sampson's first six children to survive infancy, the average length of life being little over a year. She was known as Molly and was early her father's favourite - "Our daughter is mistress here and doth just as she pleases, she can now walk very well and would be glad if her relations would come to see it," and when Mary was three - "our daughter is the rudest girl in town."

Mary grew up to become the wife of a tobacco merchant and Lombard Street banker when in 1757 she married Osgood Hanbury (1731/2-1784 qv); there were six or possibly eight children of the marriage(2). The family lived at Holfield Grange, a dignified early Georgian mansion near Coggeshall in Essex, which was conveniently close both to London and to Youngsbury, where lived Mary's sister Rachel (1743-1792 qv) who had married another banker, David Barclay (1729-1809 qv).

She died at Coggeshall on 18 November 1770(3), aged only thirty four and her virtues are clear to posterity from an epitaph which surprises by the candour of its avowal - "as a memorial to as much excellence as any religion could bestow is paid to a Quaker by a Clergyman of the Church of England."

Mary Hanbury was the daughter of William and Mary Allen and was born in September 1797. At age 22 she came forth in the ministry and in February 1822, she married Cornelius Hanbury (1796-1869, qv). The testimony relates, 'To those who had the privilege of an intimate acquaintance with her, she appeared from her youth up an example of meekness and humility of mind; she was possessed of considerable talents, which were improved by culture, but in no way presuming on them, she seemed mainly solicitous to dedicate them to the service of Him from whom she had received every blessing...' She became ill a few days after birth of a son (1), and she died on 17 May 1823. She had been a member of the Monthly Meeting of Gracechurch Street, London, and was a minister about three years.

HANBURY, Osgood (1731/2-1784)

Osgood Hanbury, the son of John Hanbury and his wife Anna, born Osgood, of Tower Street in the parish of Allhallows, Barking, was born there on 25.xii.1731(i.e. February 1731/2)(1). In January 1757 he married Mary Lloyd (1736/7-1770 qv), the daughter of Sampson Lloyd II (1699-1779 qv) and his second wife Rachel, born Champion(2) and there were six or possibly eight children of the marriage(3).

At the time of his marriage he was a wealthy tobacco merchant in partnership with his father and lived at Holfield Grange, a handsome property near Coggeshall in Essex, which had come into the Hanbury family on the marriage of John Hanbury to the heiress Anna Osgood(4). When the Birmingham Banking business of Taylor & Lloyd decided to launch a second banking venture in London Osgood Hanbury was proposed as a partner; as a prosperous Quaker merchant, firmly established in the Virginia tobacco trade(5), he was qualified to carry conviction as a banker in much the same way as the Lloyds of Birmingham. The style of the new bank, when it was finally set up at No 14 Lombard Street, was Hanbury, Taylor, Lloyd & Bowman, with Osgood Hanbury as a principal partner.

After his wife's early death in 1770, Osgood brought up his children and carried on the home at Holfield for another fourteen years, until he died on 11 January 1784(6).

Wallace Hancock was born on February 8, 1893, the youngest member of a devout Methodist family, all of whom were Sunday school teachers and this upbringing and his deep knowledge of the Bible enriched his ministry in meeting and became an inspiration to many.

In 1914 he enlisted and after training joined the 1st Battalion of the Queen's Westminsters at Ypres and in the summer of 1915 he fought in the major battles of Ypres and the Somme, being finally taken prisoner at Armentieres on April 10, 1918, so that he spent the rest of the war in a German prisoner of war camp. His war service had made him a pacifist and after the war, while still in uniform, he went to the offices of the Fellowship of Reconciliation and joined. He worked with Muriel Lester, of Kingsley Hall, Bow, and with Reginald Sorenson in often seemingly unproductive efforts to interest people in pacifism, but gradually in the 1930s interest grew and as secretary to the E.London council of the F.O.R. he began to see some results. He was a most efficient organiser, and had a great gift for gaining the friendship of young people and their enthusiastic support for the aims of peace. He served on the Central Board for Conscientious Objectors, and was for many years its treasurer. After the second world war he worked unceasingly in the peace movement, in the Standing Joint Pacifist Committee, to help pacifist organisations to work more closely together, and in the movement for a Pacifist Church which he formed.

Just before he went to France in 1915 he had become engaged to Lilian Plantin and they were married in June 1919. They began to attend Friends' meeting at Barclay Hall, Forest Gate, and joined the Society at Wanstead in 1945.⁽¹⁾ He was a worker in social welfare, first with the Poplar Board of Guardians, where he also worked long hours in the early days of socialism under the influence of George Lansbury, and later with the London County Council. He served for three years on Friends Service Council from 1957 to 1960.⁽²⁾ He cared for the individual, his meeting, which he attended regularly until the close of his life and he was able to take an active part in its concerns until the day before his death.

He died on November 14, 1975 aged 82.

Elizabeth Hands was born 3.iii.[May] 1667; her Mother dying when she was very young, she was brought up by her Father in the principles of Friends.

In 1687 she married John Hands (1), a Friend of Warwick, and in 1705 she became a Minister, and though she had a large family, travelled in various parts of the country. She was renowned for Stability, Patience and Cheerfulness through all Exercises and Trials, and was a true Sympathiser with all those afflicted, both Friends and others.

"She was frequent in secret Retirement, and steady in waiting for the Renewal of Strength from above; exemplary in diligently attending Meetings both for Worship and Discipline, in which she was not an indifferent or lukewarm, but a lively Member; and was often attended with Tokens of Fervency in Spirit, and of one travelling in the Deeps, even when bodily Weakness and Infirmities laid hold upon her."

She died 2.iii.[May] 1743 (2) and was interred in Friends Burying Ground in Warwick, aged about seventy five years, and a Minister about thirty eight years.

HANDS, John (1656/7-1739)

John Hands, the son of Humphrey and Elizabeth Hands, was born at Warwick on 15.xii.1656 [i.e. February 1656/7].

His parents brought him up strictly in the Church of England, but from his youth he was dissatisfied with what it had to offer and sought some more "substantial Bread of Life." About the year 1677 he became a regular attender at Friends' meetings and in the same year he received a gift in the ministry.

He was married in 1687/8 to Elizabeth Busbey (1667-1743 qv) of Edmonds Court near Warwick(1) and there were ten children(2).

"He visited Meetings in his own and several adjacent Counties, in which his Service was very acceptable, his Ministry being not in enticing Words of Man's Wisdom, but in Demonstration of the Spirit, and also holding fast the Form of sound Words."

John Hands died on 28.x. [December] 1739, aged about eighty three(3), a minister for about sixty two years.

John Hands was born at Warwick on 15.xii.1656 [i.e., February 1656/7]. His parents brought him up strictly in the Church of England, but from youth he was dissatisfied and sought some more "substantial Bread of Life". About the year 1677 he became a regular attender at Friends' Meetings, and the same year received a gift in the Ministry.

"He visited Meetings in his own and several adjacent Counties, in which his Service was very acceptable, his Ministry being not in enticing Words of Man's Wisdom, but in Demonstration of the Spirit, and also holding fast the Form of sound Words."

He died 28.x. [December] 1739, aged nearly eighty three, and a Minister about sixty two years.

HANNANT,

Frederick John (1911 - 1975)

Frederick Hannant was born on September 21, 1911. His father had a small laundry business in East Ham. He gained a scholarship to East Ham Grammar School and after matriculation was apprenticed to a local accountant, passing his final examinations in accountancy by the age of 21. He subsequently joined a firm with offices in London Wall. He was only nominally a Christian, but he heard Dr. Donald Soper speak on various occasions on Tower Hill, and was much influenced by him.

Shortly after the outbreak of war in 1939 he registered as a conscientious objector and in 1941 joined the F.A.U. While in training at Selly Oak, Birmingham, he attended his first Quaker meeting. Later he became chief accountant to the F.A.U. a post he retained until the unit was disbanded in 1946.

In 1943 he had married Janet, whom he had met in Lewisham Hospital where she was in her last year of training as a nurse. They set up home in Highgate and he attended Hampstead meeting for some years (1) before moving to Cheam in Surrey. There he joined Sutton Meeting (2) which he was to attend for the rest of his life, he was its clerk from 1951 to 1954. He had returned to accountancy after the war and at about this time, 1954/5 he joined the National Coal Board at their London headquarters.

He seemed outwardly a quiet, conventional man, but in his later years he took up dinghy sailing, which became a very strong interest with him, he made many camping trips by car across Europe. He worked very hard for conscientious objectors and for many years, up to his death, he organised, through Sutton Meeting, the sending of Christmas cards to war resisters in prisons throughout the world. In the early 60s he suffered a heart attack, but recovered and resumed his work at the Coal Board and his service for the Society. His ministry in meeting was greatly valued and on the last occasion he had spoken of a Friend's recent and sudden death and had commended his firm commitment to the tasks which each day brought and his ready acceptance of the fact that each day might be his last.

Only a few days later he suffered a further heart attack on his usual train journey to the office and died on May 13, 1975 aged 63.

HARDEN, Eliza Winifred (1874-1909) born Alexander

Eliza Winifred Alexander was born 20 May 1874 at Cirencester, the second daughter of William and Maria Alexander. She removed to Croydon about 1884 (1).

She married in 1901, at Croydon, Petrus Härden of Stockholm, continuing a member of Croydon meeting (2).

She died in Croydon 8 April 1909, as a result of an attack of scarlet fever, followed by inflammation of the lungs. She was buried in the New Cemetery, Stockholm, 13 April (3).

In an obituary in Svenska Dagbladet (Stockholm) she was described as 'possessing in an unusual degree' and 'quietly exemplifying', 'fidelity, dutifulness, purity of motive and of action, breadth of charity, and kindness of disposition, which prove the truth of the saying that there is "something of the Divine in every human heart".'

Emily Jane Matthews was the daughter of William and Jane Matthews, and was born at Coggeshall on 9 January 1823. In 1848 she married Robert Harding, and after living at Bristol, Braintree, Earls Colne and near Sudbury, they moved in 1869 to Westerfield, near Ipswich. In 1873 she was recorded a minister by Woodbridge M.M.

She was a frequent visitor at the Ipswich Union, and until her health failed was accustomed each First-day morning to meet with the tramps who might be detained there, who, not being admitted to the body of the house, do not on that account partake in the religious observances usual on that day. She was also much interested in temperance work and in that of social purity.

'Her ministry in her own meeting was acceptable and edifying, and manifested an earnest concern that all should be brought to their Saviour, and should live and walk in Him.'

Emily Jane Harding died on 28 December 1887.

HARDING, James, fl. 1664

James Harding, 'a young man, well respected, was banished to Jamaica [in 1665] with Edward Brush [152.1] and one other [Robert Hayes]... James Harding whilst he abode there, took to wife a young woman who before they left this island, was delivered of three daughters at a birth, all of which were brought alive to England well and in health' (Crouch, Posthumous Christiana, 1712, p.82). But the return of Harding was longer delayed than implied by Crouch, for in July, 1685, when visiting Fox at Ford Green, he is still 'of Jamaica' and in the same year, in a letter quoted by John Boweter, Harding writes of 'our island' (Ms in Friends House; see vol.ii. p.408). John Taylor, 1710, p.23; Suff; Braithwaite: Second Period of Quakerism, 1919.

There was a John Harding, living on the borders of Essex, who had a meeting at his house, frequently attended by Fox and other Friends. See Ell. Text, ii.456. There are references in London Friends' Meetings to a David Harding who held meetings at his house at Harold's Wood (pp.278, 280).

William Harding, details of whose birth and parentage are not at present (1976) traced, was born about the year 1763(1). He was much respected and beloved and had been for many years an overseer and an elder, in which station he had given much comfort and encouragement to those with whom he was associated. He was regular in his attendance at meetings, both for worship and discipline. He believed in religious liberty and his friendship and charity embraced those of every religious denomination, although he was careful always to keep in view the distinctive witness of the Society.

He died apparently unmarried(2) at Leeds on 28 March 1840, at the age of seventy seven.

Katherine Chipchase, the eldest daughter of John Chipchase (1789-1862 qv) and his wife Alice (born Robson, 1799?-1853 qv) of Stockton in Durham and later of Lathbury, near Gotherstone in Yorkshire, was born at Stockton on 17 March 1833(1). She was married in 1859 to Josiah Patrick Hardy (1831-1912 qv) and there was one child(2).

Although her life was not a long one, she exercised a quiet influence for good on those around her. She had often to subdue a naturally hasty temper and achieved in her short experience true Christian humility and steadfastness.

She died at Banbury on 2 August 1863(3), in her thirtieth year.

HARE, Samuel (1821-1900)

Samuel Hare was born at Hitchin in the year 1821, and was educated at Croydon, where he became a pupil teacher; he was later science teacher at Wigton School and then bookkeeper at Ackworth.

In 1851 he moved to Darlington and a few years later became private secretary to Joseph Pease, on whose death in 1872 he filled the same post with Arthur Pease, until the latter's death in 1898.

In 1853 Samuel Hare married Caroline Rous, of Maidenhead. He was made an Elder of Darlington Meeting in 1861 and recorded as a minister in 1874. 'His knowledge of the work of the Society over a large area was wide and exact, and he was always ready to make it of use to others'.

'His humility was very conspicuous, but it was combined with a sound judgment, a sterling integrity, and a high Christian standard, which gave weight and firmness to his character. He will long be remembered by those who knew him, as one who in all things sought to honour his Lord with cheerfulness and joy, doing all things in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks unto God and the Father by Him. Circumstances favoured his frequent attendance at the Yearly Meeting and when there he felt it a privilege to be not infrequently nominated on the Committee for the preparation of the General Epistle, a service on which his advice often proved very useful', (Tribute from Joseph Bevan Braithwaite).

Samuel Hare died 11 May 1900 aged about seventy nine years.

HARGRAVES, Henry Lister (1827-1914)

Henry L. Hargraves, who was the eldest son of James and Ann Hargraves, was born at Oldham on 10 February 1827 (1). He was educated at Ackworth School, and left to enter his father's business as a pharmaceutical chemist. He subsequently assumed full control of the business, and "the neat, trim and old-fashioned shop of Quaker Hargraves in High Street, Oldham, was long noted for the excellence and purity of its drugs."

He never married. Up to the age of 40 he took his full share in the affairs of his local Meeting, and was frequently present at Marsden Monthly Meeting. Later he transferred nearly all his activity to the work of the First Day School, established in connection with Oldham Meeting in 1865, and to the mission and social work connected with it. He always took the view that First Day School work was quite a separate concern from the corporate life of the Society of Friends, and was therefore somewhat out of harmony with the views of a later generation.

He retired from business at a comparatively early age, and devoted his life and his wealth to works of philanthropy in his own immediate neighbourhood.

His chief public interest was the Infirmary to which he contributed thousands of pounds, and gave his service free in the dispensary department. He was a loved visitor in every ward. He bequeathed to the Infirmary a sum sufficient to build and endow a Convalescent Home.

His work in the First Day School took him out three times every Sunday, and he went in all weathers, without even an overcoat. For the last three or four months of his life his health gradually failed, and he died of heart failure on 14 August 1914, at the age of 87.
