TYLER, Louisa (1835-1858)

Louisa Tyler, the daughter of John Tyler (1794-1854 qv) and his wife Eliza (born Horniman, 1801-1867 qv) of Laurence parish, Reading in Berkshire, was born there on 22 April 1835(1).

In her earlier years she was apparently indifferent to the need for a spiritual life, but after nursing her brother through a long illness it became apparent that she had begun to find true comfort in religion. After her brother's death she appeared for some months to be her usual self, but her own health began to give way. She faced her illness with calmness and perfect trust in the love and mercy of God.

Louisa Tyler of Reading died on 28 December 1858, at the age of twenty three(2).

Mary Sophia Tyler, the younger daughter of John Tyler (1794-1854 qv) and his wife Eliza (born Horniman, 1801-1867 qv) of Reading in Berkshire, was born there on 11 March 1844(1). Her father was an ardent teetotaller and temperance worker and Mary Sophia herself was a lifelong abstainer, keenly interested in all temperance work.

Her uncle John Horniman (1803-1893 qv) gave her an annuity and appointed her as a kind of almoner to the poor in Reading. She became a very well known figure in the town and for many years helped the poor with her uncle's money. Her judgment was rarely at fault; she knew almost instinctively who was sincere and was rarely taken in, or made a mistake about people.

In her later years she became very deaf and her sight was also very poor. She became so infirm that she could only attend meeting for worship in her bath chair and when she could no longer hear what was said she used to sit and read her Bible. She was a very sincere Christian, a fervent believer in divine guidance by prayer and an earnest reader of the Bible.

Mary Sophia Tyler of 3 Warwick Road, Reading, died on 28 March 1935, at the age of ninety one(2).

TYLER, Maude Gurney (1882-1966)

Maude G. Tyler was born on 29 December 1882, the eldest child of Frederick and Annette Tyler of Stoke Newington. When she was six years old the family moved to Hastings, where she remained for the following 77 years. Her great grandfather on her mother's side was Ebenezer Simmons, an elder of Devonshire House, who was educated at Ackworth; and her great grandfather on her father's side was Charles Gurney of Bristol, who went to Sidcot. Her great grandmother was sister to John Horniman (1803-1893) the tea merchant.

Maude Tyler attended Friends School Saffron Walden from 1894-1897. She then undertook training in shorthand and typewriting, and after sharing a typewriting and art studio with her sister in St Leonards, she became Principal of the St Leonards Commercial School in Warrior Square, and remained in that post until the school had to close during the last war.

She was active in many areas of Friends' affairs. A Mission at Halton under the care of Hastings Meeting was an especial interest, and she was a leader of the Band of Hope. She acted as Preparative Meeting clerk for Hastings from 1938-1940 and 1954-1960, and served Lewes & Chichester Monthly Meeting as assistant clerk for 14 years; she was a member of the Education Committee from 1922. She was appointed an overseer at the age of 35, and filled this office continuously for 48 years. She was convener of Monthly Meeting overseers from 1951 until her death; in addition, she served concurrently as an elder for 21 years.

Besides her work for Friends and the Commercial School she had many interests; she wrote revues, pantomimes and historical episodes for amateur productions. An enthusiastic and active member of the Liberal Party, she was at one time the Local Agent, and was a member of the Hastings Parliament in pre-war days.

Maude Gurney Tyler died on 10 January 1966.

TYLOR, Charles (1816-1902)

Charles Tylor was born in London in the year 1816; he was trained as a barrister, but took up educational work, living first in Yorkshire and later in the South of England, where he married. He lived at Brighton and Lewes between 1851 and 1862, during which time he was recorded a minister.

Some years later Charles Tylor felt a call to the Meeting at Manchester, and removed there with his family for seven years, returning to Brighton in 1881.

During the last twenty years of his life, he gave much time to literary work, being Editor of 'The Friend' and of the memoirs of several honoured ministers. On the death of Edward Backhouse, Charles Tylor took over his papers and published 'Early Church History' and 'Witnesses for Christ', followed by other volumes on similar subjects.

'His ministry in our meetings for worship was ever fresh and living, and being generally exercised early, often proved the key note of the vocal service which followed. It was evident that in his words of exhortation and admonition, he spoke of that which he himself had seen and handled'.

Charles Tylor died 14 March 1902, aged eighty five years.

TYLOR, Charles (1816-1902)

Charles Tylor, the son of Henry and Mary Tylor, was born in Cripplegate Buildings in London on 21 November 1816 (1). He was trained as a barrister, but took up educational work, living first in Yorkshire and later in the south of England. In 1848 he married Gulielma Maria Sparkes (2). There were six children (3). He lived at Brighton and Lewes between 1851 and 1862 during which time he was recorded a minister.

Some years later Charles Tylor felt a call to the Meeting at Manchester, and removed there with his family for seven years, returning to Brighton in 1881.

Charles Tylor was Editor of The Friend from its establishment in 1843 until 1849 (4). He also edited the memoirs of several ministers. On the death of Edward Backhouse, Charles Tylor took over his papers and published Early church history and Witnesses for Christ (1887) followed by other volumes on similar subjects.

'His ministry in our meetings for worship was ever fresh and living, being generally exercised early, often proved the key note of the vocal service which followed. It was evident that in his words of exhortation and admonition, he spoke of that which he himself had seen and handled' (Testimony).

TYLOR, Joseph Savory (1814?-1877)

Joseph Savory Tylor was recorded a minister by the North Division of Somerset Monthly Meeting in 1866, and became a second time a member of West Cornwall Monthly Meeting in 1873.

Though he did not travel from home as a minister of the Gospel, yet he was diligent in the exercise of his gift both socially and in local meetings for worship; and he was careful to encourage the services of others. For several years he took a deep interest in the Penzance Bethel (a mission meeting for seamen) and in the schools connected with it; and he was much engaged in visiting the sick.

'Large sympathy with the suffering and sorrowful, a yearning tenderness towards sinners, and great earnestness in his loving invitations to come unto Jesus, were marked characteristics of his ministry.'

Joseph Savory Tylor died at Bath 20 February 1877.

TYSON, Charles (1904 - 1978)

Charles Tyson was born on August 23, 1904 in Hull and much of his early life was spent in N.Lincolnshire where he grew roses on a large scale. In 1932 he married Margery Helen Cram (Madge) and they had four daughters.(1) Early in the forties he joined the Society of Friends (2) and they continued to live in Lincolnshire where he was a support to the small meeting in Goxhill, until about 1955 when the family moved to Westington Old Manor, Chipping Campden, Margery by then also having joined the Society of Friends. (3) At Goxhill as later in Chipping Campden he served as clerk to the meeting.(4)

At Chipping Campden they joined the small group of Friends meeting in the house of a Friend at Blockley, which became an Allowed Meeting in 1958. There, Charles Tyson began his efforts to revive the meeting at Broad Campden and to restore the Meeting House there, originally built in 1663, unused by Friends since 1874, and by then almost derelict. Despite setbacks he persevered and in 1962 the old meeting house was re-opened for worship and the six members and the few attenders who then comprised Blockley meeting became Broad Campden Meeting which in 1978 had grown to fifty members and a considerable number of attenders, with a place firmly established as a centre for Quaker worship and other activities in the life of the local community.

In the community he was deeply concerned to develop opportunities for local craft work, for music and the appreciation of beauty, he was an accomplished viola player, his wife was a singer and they often made music together. In 1961 he helped to found the Campden & District Music Society, serving as committee member and then as chairman. He was first chairman of the Campden Society and a director of the Campden Trust, which helps to restore old buildings. He was a sculptor and made the perfectly restored 13th.century dovecote in his garden available for a local stone cutting class.

He was a deeply spiritual man, in Lincolnshire he had served his monthly meeting as clerk to both elders and overseers, he also served on Meeting for Sufferings and F.S.C. (5) He had a warm and humorous personality, his ministry was deeply valued. He was clerk of Broad Campden Meeting and an elder of the monthly meeting.

He and his wife created a beautiful garden around their house and it was while working in it on January 10, 1978 that he died suddenly at the age of 73.

TYSZ, William (1889 ? - 1964)

William Tysz was born in Poland in about the year 1889(1) of Russian-Jewish parentage. He first came into contact with the Society of Friends in the summer of 1921 through the Meeting for Worship held in Warsaw by the Quaker team there. In June 1925 he accompanied William A. Albright, Henry Harris and T. Edmund Harvey on a visit to the Russian speaking Malewantsy, living at Raczkancy, East Poland, and acted as their interpreter. The Malewantsy had much in common with Friends and he lived among them for eighteen months and kept in touch with them afterwards. They have since been included in the Soviet Union.

In 1927 he joined the Society of Friends through the foreign membership of the then Friends Council for International Service (later the Friends Service Council) and began to translate into Russian several Quaker pamphlets and considerable parts of the Books of Discipline. When Poland was invaded in 1939 he was teaching English at Katowice, he immediately set off and managed to reach the Russian zone and taught there until Germany occupied the whole of Poland, when he returned to Warsaw. He first visited England soon after the war to attend a summer school at Woodbrooke, and in 1963 he attended the Conference of European Friends, also at Selly Oak. He was a man of indomitable spirit and of a strong forceful character and at his death was one of the only two Friends in Poland.

He died on August 13, 1964, aged 75.

ULLMAN, Richard Karl (1904-1963)

Richard Karl Ullman was born 19 March 1904 in Frankfurt-am-Main, Germany, of Jewish parents. His early years were full of promise; - a brilliant university career; a romantically happy marriage; good looks charm, an exuberant zest for life, and assured position - all were his. But the rise of Nazism wrecked all, and in 1938 he was arrested and sent to Buchenwald concentration camp.

By his early poetical writings Richard Ullman was known to Rudolf Schlosser, a German Quaker, and it was through this slender life-line that the help of English Friends was brought to him and his release eventually secured, mainly through the efforts of Elizabeth Fox Howard. Another Friend who was of great help to him when he arrived at Woodbrooke from Germany in 1939 was Herbert G. Wood, who could meet his sharp criticism of Quakerism on the intellectual level and yet radiate a simple, loving faith.

In 1940 he was interned, and sent to Australia on the notorious ship Dunera. The experiences that followed evoked the loneliness and hardships of Paul, and it was the grace of the New Testament rather than that of the Old which enabled him to endure. The same courage and hope that inspired him to enhearten his fellow-prisoners in Buchenwald led him to serve the internees, organizing educational and recreational activities and conducting on Sundays a small Quaker meeting.

Richard Ullman returned to London in 1943, and was seriously injured during an air-raid, and still had the loneliness of separation from his wife and two little daughters who were still in Germany. After the war Richard Ullman was the first German to re-enter Germany with a British relief team. After re-union with his family, he and his wife ~~joined~~ Helene joined the Society of Friends.

After an unsuccessful period of teaching, he was given the post of Regional Tutor in the Adult School Union, and set up a home in Birmingham - his first home in 15 years. The fulfilment of his life's work was opened when, supported by the Joseph Rowntree Charitable Trust, he was able to undertake full-time work in the cause of Christian reconciliation. In this work he travelled widely, on the Continent, in the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R., his personality, intellectual ability and Christian conviction making him eminently fitted for this task. He also wrote and lectured. He gave the Swarthmore Lecture in 1961. Among the many important conferences in which he was deeply involved were the Prague Peace Conference, the Nyborg Conference. He was the Quaker Observer at the first Vatican Council.

Richard Ullman died very suddenly on 8 August 1963, aged 59.

UPPERTON, Edgar,

(1895 ? - 1968)

Edgar Upperton was born in about the year 1895.(1).

We have in 1978 no details of his early life except that in about 1920 he married Eva Bodey and settled for a time in Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Manchester. His first experience of Quakers was when he was taken by a friend to Alexandra Park Meeting one Sunday and he joined the Society in about 1934.(2) He was at that time a civil servant in Manchester, and he took an active part in the affairs of Hardshaw East MM and served as an elder. During the last war he was Quaker chaplain to the C.O.s. in Strangeways prison and many were helped by him.

On his retirement in the early fifties he moved to Bradford on Avon (3) where he again served as an elder and as an overseer of N.Somerset & Wilts MM. He also served on a number of Friends central committees.(4) He had a great zest for life and a quality of joyousness; he was a keen gardener. He and his wife made their homes in Manchester and in Bradford on Avon ' a place for friendliness, refreshment and peace '.

He died on August 14, 1968 at the age of 73.

URWEN, Ann (1667-1751) born Wilson

2X

Ann Wilson, the daughter of John and Elizabeth Wilson who lived in the county of Cumberland, was born in the year 1667. Her parents were members of the Church of England, but while Ann was still young they became convinced of the Truth and she was educated in the beliefs and principles of the Society of Friends. She appeared in the ministry when she was about twenty five and "was a diligent attender of Meetings, and Zealous for the Truth, and was favour'd with a powerful Gift of the Ministry, and was Several times concerned to Visit the Churches in this Nation, as well as Scotland & Ireland, to the Edification & Comfort of the faithful; but to the Workers of Iniquity very terrible so as to make the Sinners in Sion afraid; she was favoured in an extraordinary manner with the Gift of Prayer."

In 1700 she married John Urwen (1676-1762 qv) of Mosside or Moorside(1) and there were probably five children, but the birth entries give only the father's name.(2)

She died after a long illness on 17.iii.(May)1751.(3)

W.H.

John Urwen was born in Parkrigg in Cumberland; his father was a Friend 'of good repute' and he was educated in a religious manner. In his 28th year he was 'called to the ministry'; at first his testimonies were short but helpful, and as he waited humbly for his guide his gift improved greatly, so that, being a man of great natural abilities and sanctity, he made an outstanding contribution in prayer, as in exhortation and teaching, distinguished by power, wisdom and authority. He was a diligent attender of meetings, including Yearly Meeting, and he paid visits to Friends in England, Scotland and Ireland.

He was generous in entertaining strangers, whom he welcomed in 'freedom and openness of heart'. He was successful in the affairs of the world, though in his later life he had to meet dishonour as well as honour; this he did with calm and Christian composure. He was "not suffered to sink in the deep waters".

As he grew older his ministry became more and more fresh and living so that 'The Dew of Youth' was upon it.

He died at Moorside in Cumberland in 1762 aged 86, a minister for 58 years, and was buried in the Friends' burial ground at Solport.

USSHHER, Elizabeth (1749-1817) born Paul

2

Elizabeth Ussher was born on 23 Fifth month [July] 1749 at Waterford. Her parents were William and Mary Paul, and she was brought up by them in the Church of England. 'She was early inclined to seriousness', and appears to have been uneasy at the easy circumstances in which she was reared.

In 1770 she married John Ussher of Coppagh, Co.Waterford.

In 1797 she, with her three surviving daughters Lucy, Judith and Susanna, joined the Society of Friends.

She was acknowledged a minister in 1807, and travelled with a Certificate, visiting Meetings in London and some others in England. She was a regular attender at her Quarterly and Yearly Meetings, and once united with a family visit in Waterford.

She died, after an illness of several months, on 27 April 1817.

VAIZEY, Sarah (1775?-1840) born De Horne

Sarah De Horne, the youngest daughter of George and Sarah De Horne of Stanway Hall near Colchester, was born about the year 1775(1). The family of De Horne settled in England about the year 1571 and were from Nova Kirk near Ypres in Flanders. They were at that time members of the Dutch Calvinistic Church and came to England to escape from the persecution of the Duke of Alva. They became members of the Society in 1684.

Sarah De Horne was brought up in the religious beliefs and principles of the Society and although on her marriage to John Vaizey, who was not a Quaker, she forfeited her membership, she continued to attend meetings for worship and maintained her close ties with Friends. Some years after her husband's death she was re-united with the Society, at her own wish.

She was naturally diffident and retiring and found difficulty in expressing her feelings on religious subjects, but it was clear to all who knew her that her spiritual life was deepening and that she was not content with the external expression of her religious beliefs.

She died at Halstead in Essex on 21 February 1840(2), at the age of sixty five.
