

PIM, Abigail (1767-1821)

3

Abigail Pim, the daughter of John Pim (1718-1797 qv) and his wife Sarah (born Clibborn, 1724-1812 qv) of Dublin, was born there on 28 January 1767. While she was still a child the family moved to London.

Although she was delicate in her youth, she possessed excellent mental faculties, in striking contrast to her physical weakness. She underwent some severe trials of faith as she grew up, but when she was about twenty nine years old she felt herself called to the ministry. She was at that time a member of Peel Monthly Meeting. Her ministry was clear, sound and often instructively argumentative and she was concerned that her hearers should always listen for the still, small voice in the soul.

Besides her service at home, she travelled in the ministry in her own and adjacent quarterly meetings and after the death of her mother in 1812 she went to Ireland. With several other women Friends she visited the women prisoners in London prisons and organised Bible classes.

About fifteen months before she died her health began rapidly to fail and she became increasingly confined to the house. She was much tried in her faith during this period, but Abigail Pim of Clerkenwell, Middlesex, died at peace on 19 December 1821, at the age of fifty five(1).

PIM, Abigail (1767-1821) 3

Abigail Pim was born 28 January 1767 in Dublin, the daughter of John and Sarah Pim. Her parents removed while she was still a child, to London. She was of a weakley constitution in early life.

She travelled in the ministry in her own and in adjacent Quarterly Meetings, and, after the death of her mother in 1812, in Ireland. With several other women Friends she visited the women prisoners in London prisons, and organized Bible classes.

During 1820 her health declined and she became increasingly confined to the house.

She died on 19 December 1821, having been a minister about 26 years.

Albert F. Pim was born in Belfast on 29 April 1874, and educated there and at Bootham.

He went under the auspices of F.F.M.A. to Madagascar in 1899. In 1902 he married Anna Marion Webb, and opened a new Mission Station. In 1909 Marion Pim died and he brought his two little girls home to Dublin. In 1910 he married Mary E. Harrod, and they returned to work in Madagascar. He retired in 1928 and settled in Parkstone, joining Bournemouth Meeting where he served as an Overseer.

'He had a talent for getting into touch with newcomers to the Meeting, and many will unite with one who wrote: "He was one of the friendliest Friends I have ever known, and that is saying a lot."'

He died on 22 December 1942.

A. Marion Webb, the daughter of Albert and Emilie M. Webb of Dublin, was born in 1880, and while still a child formed the 'Small Home Society' for raising money for foreign missions and for Dr Barnardo's Homes. After spending two years at the Mount School in York from 1895-97, she returned home to study medicine with a view to undertaking missionary work - her missionary enthusiasm leading her to attend two Quarterly Meetings at Moyallon and Enniscorthy to advocate foreign mission study among Friends. Before attending the Mount she had taught in an infants' class at the Strand Street Sunday School in Dublin, and later while studying in Dublin she started a meeting for Friends' children held once a month at Eustace Street.

In 1900 she became engaged to Albert Pim of Belfast, who had recently gone out to Madagascar, and as she would not have been allowed to practice medicine in Madagascar without a French diploma, she gave up her medical studies and, being accepted by the Friends Foreign Mission Association, she attended Chester House. At the same time, she helped at the Bedford Institute and with a mothers' meeting and spent some time in Switzerland in order to improve her French.

1942, qu)

She sailed for Madagascar in August 1902 and married Albert F. Pim in October of that year. While they were at first stationed at Amboniriana, where she learned Malagasy and in 1903 undertook some classes in the Junior school. They later, in 1905, opened up a new station in Faratsiho in the West Ankaratra district, some 70 miles from Tananarive. Here she taught Scripture, singing, and sewing at five different centres, later adding classes for Sunday school teachers, and with her husband often visited the more distant schools and churches.

She and her husband returned to Ireland on furlough in 1907, going back to Madagascar in the autumn of 1908, but on 12 March 1909 (1)

PIM, Arthur (1843-1931)

Arthur Pim, the son of James Pim (1803-1892 qv) and his wife Sarah (born Pim, 1810-1898 qv), was born on 10 July 1843(1). He was a member of a well known Dublin family and lived in Ulster for over fifty years.

He was married in 1876 to Anne Richardson (1842-1894 qv) of Lisburn(2) and there were two children(3).

His interests in Christian work at home and abroad were many and varied and were maintained for nearly seventy years. He was for many years an active member of the Board of the Friends Foreign Mission Association and at the time of the missionary conference in 1903 he presided at the farewell meeting to bid God speed to fourteen missionaries, who were going out to Friends' posts in India, China, Madagascar, Syria and Ceylon. He was keenly interested in the Christian Workers' Union, of which he had been local president in Lisburn since its foundation. His presence at all times had brought blessing to their meetings and his ripe experience, wise counsel and sane judgment guided them. His practical sympathy for their work was shown at all times and he was concerned for the deepening of the spiritual life of his fellows.

He also cared deeply for the welfare of the Society of Friends. His addresses in the ministry were deeply spiritual, setting forth the life of fulness in the love of Christ; they were clear and to the point and were combined with a tenderness of spirit which won an entrance into many hearts.

Arthur Pim died on 3 April 1931, after being taken ill at an hotel in Ballywater, where he had gone to spend a few days with his daughter and son-in-law(4).

PIM, John (1800-1865)

John Pim, the eldest surviving son of John Pim (1771-1851 qv) and his wife Hannah (born Wakefield, 1773-1847 qv) of Pancraft near Roscrea in Ireland, was born there on 23 October 1800(1). From childhood he showed an interest in religion and was early brought to the knowledge and love of God. He served his apprenticeship, with integrity and fidelity, in Dublin.

In 1825 he moved to Belfast and settled there. He was married in 1834 to Sarah Clibborn (1803-1886 qv)(2) and there were five children(3).

He had for a long time felt that he was called to the ministry, but diffidence and a sense of his own unworthiness caused him to shrink from the task. It was not until 1864, after he had long been an overseer and an elder, that he was at length recorded a minister. For two years previously his health had been declining, although he continued to attend meetings and went about the business of the Society with his usual interest and energy.

John Pim died at Belfast on 14 January 1865(4), at the age of sixty four.

PIM, Joseph Robinson (1832-1900)

Joseph Robinson Pim, generally known as Captain Pim, was born on 28 February 1832, the son of Joseph Robinson Pim of Dublin. Part of his early life was spent at Vevey in Switzerland, where he gained a good knowledge of French, which proved of great subsequent use to him. His career as a mariner led to his visiting many places abroad and he eventually became captain of a sailing ship. He worked on the improvement of methods of lowering boats and rafts from ships in distress and carried out many experiments to this end. He showed models of his own making at an international exhibition at Paris, working not for private profit, but for disinterested, humanitarian motives.

In 1869 he visited Syria in the company of Eli and Sybil Jones and there he met Marianna Lion Cachet of Amsterdam whom he married.

Since he had private means, he wanted to spend his time directly on mission work and at their village home in France he and his wife established a First-day school, four pupils of which afterwards became pastors. In connection with the McAll mission, they worked on some of the rivers of France on a mission boat built at his suggestion and partly from his design. They travelled from village to village, working among the peasants and others and holding crowded gospel meetings. When the McAll mission work came to an end, they persuaded English Friends to help the evangelistic work to continue. Their Valence home was a port of call for French pastors, a centre for mothers' meetings, classes for children and other Christian work. Captain Pim won others to the Christian way of life by his simple trust, honesty, devotion and his power of prayer.

On 8 January 1900 he died at the age of 68 after a brief illness.

PIM, Sarah (1803-1886) born Clibborn

Sarah Clibborn, the daughter of John Barclay and Elizabeth (born Grubb) Clibborn of Anner Mills near Clonmel in county Tipperary, was born there on 27 June 1803(1). She was the eldest child of a large family and was a good and useful example to her brothers and sisters.

She was married in 1834 to John Pim (1800-1865 qv) of Belfast and there were five children(2). On her marriage she entered into a new sphere of usefulness. She and her husband were united in their deep concern for the welfare of the Society and its ministers were always warmly welcomed in their home.

She was a regular attender at all the religious meetings of the Society, often in difficult circumstances, and served as an elder for nearly forty years. She was known and valued beyond the limits of the Society and took an active interest in various philanthropic institutions; her clear judgment and wise counsel were much appreciated by those with whom she shared committee service.

She had always been fond of reading and chose her books with care and discrimination. When she came to Belfast she and her husband felt that the youth of the Society should be provided with literature of an instructive character and they were chiefly instrumental in the formation of a Circulating Book Society, which remained under her care until nearly the close of her life. One of her special characteristics was her loving sympathy with those in sickness or affliction, to whom she was a frequent visitor. Her bright, cheerful disposition endeared her to the young, by whom she was much beloved.

Her husband died in 1865 and in 1880 she went to live with her widowed daughter at White Abbey. For some time her health gradually failed and during the last three months of her life she became seriously ill, but her mind remained clear and she bore her illness with patience and fortitude.

Sarah Pim of White Abbey, Belfast, died on 1 January 1886(3), at the age of eighty three.

PIM, William Harvey (1812?-1878)

William Harvey Pim was a birthright member of Dublin Monthly Meeting, though it was not until he approached middle life that he turned to a ~~live~~ interest in the Society. His diligent study of the Bible, and a natural gift for exposition, were of much service in meetings and in Gospel ministry, including a series of papers on the Book of Acts, rendered additionally interesting by his personal knowledge of Palestine.

He was appointed an Overseer in 1862 and in spite of the handicap of deafness filled this office for some years. In 1865 he was recorded a Minister, his ministry being clear, sound and impressive, and his prayers deeply solemn and fervent.

'He was known to his fellow-citizens as an upright, conscientious man of business, in which he was extensively engaged. He took an active interest in public affairs, being especially interested in those which affected the moral and social well-being of the people; and he was a cheerful and liberal giver to benevolent and philanthropic objects'.

William Harvey Pim died 19 November 1878, aged 66 years.
