

RUTTER, Alice Kate (1868-1964) born Pring

Alice Kate Pring, daughter of Daniel S. Pring of Newport, Iow, was born 18 January 1868 (1).

Although born and brought up as an Anglican, A.K. Pring was early attached to Friends. Her first visit to Mere took place when she was 13. When she was 25 she settled there, becoming very active in social, educational, welfare and religious work. In 1897, when she was 29, she married Francis Burchett Rutter (1869-1932, qv) (2).

Alice Rutter had a commanding presence, a strong voice, and she did not suffer fools gladly. She spent the greater part of her life in service for others, especially the unemancipated of her own sex. For ten and a half years she was honorary superintendent of the home for unmarried mothers, 'The Retreat', run by the Women's Free Church Council. An intensely loyal Friend, she was always ready to co-operate with other Christians, and she had an ecumenical outlook before that word became current. The atmosphere of her home, with her husband and four children (3), was unusually full and rich.

She died on 5 September 1964, aged 96 years.

RUTTER, Daniel (1775-1840)

Daniel Rutter, son of John and Hannah (born Grimes) Rutter of Witney, Oxon, was born there on 4 February 1775 (1). He was educated at Ackworth School (2) and served an apprenticeship in London.

During an illness when aged about 29 he received strong religious convictions and a change of heart, evincing a readiness and alacrity in serving the Society and his friends and neighbours. He was acknowledged a minister in 1830, his communications being mostly short, sound and edifying.

His last illness was short. He died at Witney on 17 May 1840, aged 65 years (3). His body was interred in Friends burial ground, Witney.

RUTTER, Elizabeth (1814?-1856) born Dudley

Elizabeth Dudley, the third daughter of Sheldon and Elizabeth Dudley of Rosorea in county Tipperary, Ireland, was born about the year 1814(1). In 1838 she moved with her mother and sisters to England and lived at Peckham until her marriage in 1848 to Charles Rutter of Hillingdon near Uxbridge(2); the marriage was apparently childless(3).

Her sweet and amiable manners endeared her to a large circle of relations and acquaintances and she enjoyed a life of almost uninterrupted health until the autumn of 1855, when she became unwell. Her illness did not appear serious and it was disregarded, but in 1856 she became seriously ill and died at Uxbridge on 10 February 1856(4), at the age of forty two.

Francis B. Rutter, youngest child of John Farley (1824-1899, qv) and Hannah Player (born Tanner, 1830-1876, qv) Rutter of Mere, was born there on 23 May 1869 (1).

He was educated at Sidcot (where he became head boy) and after his medical training at Durham University and the London Hospital he returned to practice in Mere. He took a large part in the public life of the town.

In 1897 he married Alice Kate Pring (1868-1964, qv) (2): there were 5 children, one of whom died in infancy (3). Their home was a place of joy and inspiration in the complete harmony and bond of religious experience and service.

In his widespread country practice Frank Rutter had a very close and intimate relationship with large numbers of people who admired and loved him. He had an engaging personality and his radiance and transparent sincerity enabled him to work in harmony with those holding different views.

With seemingly tireless vitality he joined in the affairs of the meeting at Mere, the Free Church Council, the causes of peace, education and temperance. He was an exceptionally convincing speaker on the scientific effects of alcohol, and he contributed to the Report of the Licensing Commission. He was a Justice of the Peace for 26 years.

Deeply committed to follow Christ from an early age, Frank Rutter was a source of real help and inspiration to others who remember him as a faithful Christian and a beloved physician.

RUTTER, Hubert Llewellyn (1867-1953)

2 X

Hubert Ll. Rutter was born 20 September 1867 at Mere, Wiltshire; he and his brother being the two youngest members of a large Quaker family and being devoted to one another until Frank's death in 1932. The brothers took their medical training together at the London Hospital, gaining the joint Diploma of MRCS, LRCP, then the higher degree of FRCS and later their MD at Durham University. Hubert also obtained the Diploma of Public Health. He spent some months in 1894 as Medical Officer on the Mission Ship of the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen and was a friend of Dr Wilfred Grenfell. He began general practice in Newcastle upon Tyne in 1900, and in 1904 he married Ethel A. Bendall.

During his training in London Hubert Rutter took an active part in Adult School work, having an immense influence on men. In 1914 he began St. John Ambulance Brigade First-Aid lectures and these led to much responsibility for the St. John voluntary work in the Northern Counties during the 1914-18 war, for which he gained the MBE. In 1919 he gave up general practice and took an appointment as a Regional Medical Officer for the Ministry of Health, and five years later he moved to Birmingham where he worked for nearly 30 years. He was a lifelong teetotaller and was an ardent worker for Temperance Societies, giving many lectures on the subject. When war broke out again in 1939 he started First Aid courses among Friends and at the FAU Camp at Manor Farm.

'He was a devoted Elder of Cotteridge Meeting and had a special concern for vocal ministry. He was ever ready to give encouragement and to think out practical ways of deepening the quality of Meetings for Worship.'

'He believed profoundly in stewardship, not only of time, but of every other possession: health, wealth, ability and character were all matters for which he was accountable to God. To him all life was one in the service of his Master.'

He died 16 June 1953.

RUTTER, John Farley (1824-1899)

John Farley Rutter, son of John (1796-1851, qv) and Ann (born Clarence) Rutter of Shaftesbury, was born there on 1 January 1824 (1). He was educated at Croydon school.

In 1850 he married Hannah Player Tanner (2): there were 11 children (3). Four years after their marriage they moved to Mere, Wilts, where a Friends' meeting was soon after established.

As an elder, John Farley Rutter's counsels to those young in the exercise of vocal ministry were encouraging and helpful.

'He not infrequently spoke in our meetings for worship during the latter years of his life, and there was much freshness and earnestness, combined with a loving spirit, in his ministry. In our business meetings his ripe judgment gave weight to his opinions, and he will be greatly missed' (4).

RUTTER, Richard Ball (1826-1898)

Richard Ball Rutter was born in 1826 but nothing is known of his early life, except that he wrote 'it was without God and spent injuriously'. After a residence of two years in Australia he settled at Newcastle, where he married Anna Maria Clapham in 1863.

His public ministry began in the year 1870, and he was recorded a minister by Newcastle Monthly Meeting the next year.

About ten years later he and his wife removed to Redland, Bristol, "where as the years passed his gift of ministry was enlarged and his mind being stored with Scripture and poetry, he was enabled to bring forth out of his treasure things new and old, and it was evident to his friends that he spoke from the depths of his own experience, and with longing desires for the spiritual good of those whom he ministered".

He was not only a minister, but also a true pastor, and spent a good deal of time visiting his friends, especially the sick and afflicted. He took a deep interest in young men, and at one time held a Bible class in his house for their benefit..

Richard Ball Rutter died 18 September 1898 aged seventy three years.

RUTTER, Thomas (1741-1800)

Thomas Rutter was born 27.vii./Sept. 1741, the son of Benjamin and Jane Rutter of Castle St., Bristol (1), but was educated by non-Friends. The contrast between the professions and the conduct of those about him induced in him not merely an aversion to formal worship, but the conclusion that religion itself was a jest. About his 13th year he was placed in an 'exposed' situation and 'quickly ~~launched~~ launched out into many Follies & Vanities', of which he afterwards repented. He came forth in public testimony about his 18th year. He became a bellows-maker (2).

He married firstly, 12 October 1768, at Alton, Ruth, daughter of Samuel (1691/2-1775 qv) and Deborah (1697-1776 qv) Waring of Alton, Hants (3).

He married, secondly, 8 February 1780 at Bristol, Hester, daughter of Felix and Elizabeth Farley of Bristol (4).

He made several journeys in the ministry into various parts of England, and twice visited Ireland, in 1766 and 1793 (5). In 1776 he was clerk of London YM (6). In his last years he was restricted in his ministry to the area about Bristol, but despite increasing infirmity was seldom absent from meeting.

on / He died ~~x~~ September 1800 and was interred in Friends Burial Ground, Bristol, 7 September (7).

Testimony of London & Middlesex QM in YM Proc. 1919, p.337

RYAN, James William (1876-1918)

James William Ryan, the son of James Ryan and his wife Jane, born Atterbury of Finsbury and Spitalfields in London, was born at Finsbury on 2 October 1876(1). He was the eldest of a family of four, his father was a Roman Catholic and his mother a member of the Church of England, so that James was brought up in the Roman Catholic faith. He received his early education at the local board school, but when he was about seven years old his parents moved to Spitalfields. Through the influence of an aunt on his mother's side, who was associated with the Friends' School and Mission at the Bedford Institute, the boy joined the Band of Hope which met there and subsequently the First-day School also. He was a devoted son and when his mother was left a widow, he promised at the age of twelve that he would always look after her.

On his father's death he left school and a situation was found for him with a firm of merchants and importers; he continued in this employment, winning the confidence and esteem of his employers, until he felt called to the mission field. He had first become interested in mission work at the First-day School and was convinced that his future lay in Madagascar. He had been an active and valued worker in many of the activities of the Bedford Institute and also had some dramatic talent, which helped to give him confidence in his later work; as a Band of Hope boy he had won silver and gold medals in verse speaking competitions.

He became a member of the Society of Friends in 1896 and in 1899 offered himself to the Friends' Foreign Mission Association for service in the mission field. He was accepted and after a course of training at Chester House and in Switzerland(2) he was sent to Imerina to acquire the language and to become familiar with the people and their ways, before commencing work in Madagascar. The tasks devolving on him there were a severe test of his powers. After a few months with one of the missionaries already out there he took charge of the district and later assisted another missionary by taking charge of seventeen meetings and schools, followed again by sole responsibility for the district.

In the summer of 1908 he came home on leave and became engaged to Beatrice Maud Ascoli, who was already associated with Friends at the Walthamstow Centre, a branch of the Bedford Institute Association. She followed him to Madagascar and they were married at Tananarive on 1 May 1912(3); there was one child(4).

After service in three districts in Madagascar, the Ryans undertook a long desired extension into the Sakalava country on the west coast of Africa and early in 1914 James W. Ryan and his wife began work at Maintirano, where they established a mission and founded a school. The plan adopted was to gather some of the young men together for a course of instruction and, while developing their mental and spiritual faculties, to show them by manual work the value of industry and to make them missionaries to their own people. Thus by patient effort the foundation of the Friends' Mission among the Sakalava people was well and truly laid. James W. Ryan was never much concerned with theological questions; his Christianity was practical, he was beloved by his fellow workers and his faith shone through his life(5).

James W. Ryan and his wife came home on leave in June 1917 and he planned to return to Africa in October 1918. But the ship in which he sailed, the SS Hirano Mara, was torpedoed off the south coast of Ireland on 4 October 1918; she sank in seven minutes and James Ryan was among those drowned(6).

Hannah Hinde, the fourth child of Robert and Anne Hinde of Maryport, Cumberland, was born there on 11 December 1854 (1). At the age of twelve she entered the Friends' School, Wigton and her schoolfellows would remember her for her quiet and conscientious observance of the rules of the school.

Her health was not good, and she was deaf following scarlet fever in her childhood; nevertheless she took a foremost place in her class.

in 1877, at the age of twenty-two, she married John Sadler of Grange Farm, Gilcrux (2): there were two daughters (3). In 1880 they moved to Crosby, near Maryport. In 1883 she was seized with paralysis, and never recovered the full power of her left side, but although forced to live a retired life she always took keen interest in the accounts of Quarterly and Monthly Meetings given to her. Her patience and cheerfulness when so dependent on others were an inspiration to those around her. Her loving sympathy in the joys and cares of others testified to the clearness of her mind. Her strength ebbed steadily, and on 24 June 1891, when in great distress, she said sweetly and solemnly, 'Let us petition our Heavenly Father that it may be well with us all'.

She died on 25 June 1891, aged 36.

SADLER, John (1853-1915)

John Sadler, the only son of John Sadler and his wife Mary, born Thompson, of Baurgh near Wigton in Cumberland, was born there on 5 February 1853(1). He and his three sisters were all educated at Wigton School. His father, an esteemed elder, died at Parkgate, Wigton in 1873, leaving John at the age of twenty to carry on the farm and to be the mainstay of the family.

The responsibility was a heavy one, but he managed to struggle through and, after moving to another farm nearer Maryport and the death of his mother, he was married in 1877 to Hannah Hinde (1854-1891 qv), the daughter of Robert and Ann Hinde of Maryport(2); there were two children(3). His marriage promised much happiness, for Hannah Sadler was well qualified to enter into her husband's pursuits and interests, but after the birth of their second child she became an invalid and for some years needed the loving care of her husband and her younger sister Mary.

The death of his younger daughter Edith at the age of four, followed by that of his wife, affected John Sadler deeply, but he had been acknowledged a minister by Holme Monthly Meeting in 1888 and his faith upheld him in his time of trial. After his wife's death he gave up his farm in Cumberland and went to live at Fritchley in Derbyshire. In 1898 he was married at St Helier in Jersey to his wife's younger sister Mary Hinde(4), a union which brought him great happiness and comfort. While at Fritchley he entered very fully into the life of Friends there and frequently exercised his loving and persuasive gift to the help of the young and those who were newly convinced members of the Society.

After some years at Fritchley he was unexpectedly given the opportunity to take over a farm and estate long carried on by some relations, but he maintained his interest in Fritchley and as long as he was able frequently spent a few days with his friends and relations there. But it became increasingly clear that he was in his right place at Highflatts and he looked forward to many years of useful service there. He was greatly influenced by the poetry of John Greenleaf Whittier and drew upon this knowledge in his ministry. "His life, however, was his most beautiful sermon."(Minute)

His last two years were full of pain and suffering, but he died peacefully in the West London Hospital on 2 December 1915, at the age of sixty two(5).

Henry G. de St Dalmas, who was not a member of the Society of Friends, was accepted for service with the FFMA on 31 October 1895, though he had in fact assisted in India from 1888.

His service included Anglo-vernacular work. He took charge of work in Sohagpur during the furlough of J.H. Williams, 1888-1889. After the return of J.H. Williams, Henry de St Dalmas opened a mission among the hill tribes of Balaghat. He again assisted FFMA from 1896, taking Charles D. Terrell's place at Sehore. In August 1896 he had an interview with the Begum of Bhopal and presented him with a Bible, but was refused liberty to preach in the villages. He assisted in the famine relief and was on furlough, February 1900 to November 1901. On his return to India in 1901 he helped at Hoshangabad until 1905, except for a time in 1903 when he helped with the editing of the Bombay guardian. He ceased his FFMA association in 1905.

He had married before 1888 Susan M.E. Bernard.

Frederick B. Sainty was born 7 May 1863 and joined the Society of Friends at Maidstone in 1894. In 1905 he moved to New Southgate and was largely instrumental in building up the Meeting there, later helping to raise funds for a Meeting House. He was a representative at many gatherings both Quaker and other, including the 1920 All Friends Conference at Devonshire House, the 1932 Conference of Mennonites in Holland and the Eisenach Conferences with German Friends in 1923 and 1925. He was Quaker Chaplain to CO's 1915-18 at Hounslow, Mill Hill and Wandsworth, and visited CO's at Dartmoor. Later he visited under concern Friends in Germany, Austria, Switzerland, U.S.A. and Canada. He was a representative to the Five Years' Meeting in U.S.A. in 1927, and in 1929 attended the All American Friends' Conference. He served on the Foreign Membership Committee of the FSC and also on the London QM Extension Committee.

'He was deeply concerned that our Meetings for Worship should be held in the Life and Power that takes away the occasion of all wars, and also that ministry should arise out of it to serve our deepest needs. His constant advice to seekers was to wait, at length to receive that Power of Love. His spiritual calm influenced many who came into contact with him.'

He died 24 September 1948.

Richard Sale lived at Hoole near Chester and was a tailor (Swarth. MSS.iv.113). He was convinced by Richard Hubberthorne, whom it was his duty as constable, under the vagrancy law, to conduct out of the district (F.P.T.; Taylor, Hubberthorne, 1911). The date of the sign here referred to was 1655, though given in the Journal under 1660. In a letter to Fox, Sale describes the proceeding, 'I was made by the command to take a letherne girdle, and to binde ye sackclouth to my lines, and to take sum sweete flowers in my right hand, and sum stingking weeds in my left hand, and eashes strowed upon my head, bearefoote and bearlegged... my mouth was opened in much power and my mornening habbit was exseeding dredfull, soe yt those wch ware clouthed in hoods vailes and ringes and changable suties of aparrill did hide them selves and ware eshamed' (Swarth. MSS.iv.211). Besse describes Little Ease, 'devised for Torture', thus:- 'It was an Hole hewed out in a Rock, the Breadth and Cross from Side to Side was seventeen Inches, from the Back to the Inside of the great Door at the Top, seven Inches, at the Shoulders eight Inches, at the Breast nine Inches and an Half; from the Top to the Bottom one Yard and an Half, with a Device to lessen the Height, as they are minded to torment the Person put in, by Drawboards, which shoot over the two Sides to a Yard Height, or thereabout' (Suff. i.100). 'Being corpulent it required the strength of four men to thrust him in, in doing which they crushed him till the blood gushed out of his mouth and nose' (Armistead, Select Miscellanies, 1851, iii.354). Other Friends also suffered in Little Ease.

SALT, William

William Salt of London, accompanied Fox through his journey in the West and imprisonment at Launceston (West Answering, 1657; Swarth. MSS.i.166, 167). In 1659, Salt 'suffered hard and grievous imprisonment at Morlaix in France, but through the Intercession of the English Ambassador, he was released by an order from the King, being os emaciated by hard Confinement and Want, that he was become like a skeleton of a man' (Suff. ii.395; MS in Friends House).

It is evident from a collation of the Ell. edd. with the MS. that Salt lost repute with his previous associates. Instead of the name, which appears three times on this page and the next, Ell. edd. have 'a Friend who was then with me', also 'the other Friend' or 'another Friend' etc. (See also 214,1 and 383a) This estrangement appears to have arisen through Salt's sympathy with John Perrott and other Separatists. 'Will Saltē hath publisht in printe a Book [Some Breathings of Life] against first daye meetings, and yt none should meet but as they are Imediatly moved' etc. (Swarth. MSS.iv.95, anno 1663); 'Will Salt A bad sperit and creeper in darkness... freinds denied him ' (ibid. iv.128, anno 1664). See ii.336

SALTER, Ada (1867-1942) born Brown

Ada Salter was born on 4 December 1867, the second daughter of Samuel and Sarah Brown, who were Methodists.

She worked under Dr. Scott Lidget at the Bermondsey Settlement, and in 1900 married Dr. Alfred Salter, a fellow worker. She served on Bermondsey Borough Council for 34 years, was elected to the Board of Guardians, and was for 17 years a member of the L.C.C. In 1923 she was Mayor of Bermondsey.

She joined Friends in 1915. In 1917 she attended conferences in Switzerland in connection with Peace, and in 1919 went to Vienna and other towns for the Women's International League.

She was President and Chairman of the National Gardens Guild for three years, and did much to brighten the drab streets of Bermondsey. The L.C.C. named the Old English Garden in Southwark Garden in her memory.

'Of her it may truly be said that she made the desert to blossom as the rose, and that in her life many had seen the Light of Christ shining in the dark places of the earth.'

She died on 4 December 1942.

SALTER, Alfred (1873-1945)

2X

Alfred Salter was born on 16 June 1873, the elder son of Walter and Elizabeth Salter.

He was educated at the Roan School, Greenwich, and at Guy's Hospital, where he gained the gold medal for medicine and triple first class hon. in the London M.B. He was House Physician at Guy's, and for three years was bacteriologist at the Lister Institute, gaining the gold medal in M.D. examination and the Golding Bird gold medal and scholarship in public health.

While working in Bermondsey he came to see that all social effort was unavailing without Christ, and in 1900 he joined Friends. In this year also he married Ada Brown, and with her spent his life working in East London.

He was a member of the Bermondsey Borough Council and, later, of the L.C.C. In 1922 he became M.P. for West Bermondsey.

He was keenly interested in total abstinence and in pacifism. In 1936 he toured the United States with George Lansbury on a Peace crusade. He was a founding member of the P.P.U. and was its Treasurer for a time.

'Alfred Salter could be compared to one of the prophets of the Old Testament, denouncing wrong and hypocrisy wherever he saw it; his clarion call was uttered with no hesitating note, and the inspiration to overcome the weakness of the flesh he drew from the examples of Jeremiah and Ezekiel. Like them he showed his own generation how to build a new world, wherein dwelleth Righteousness and Peace.'

He died on 24 August 1945.

SALTER, George

George Salter of Hedgerley, Co. Bucks belonged to Chalfont Meeting (Jnl FHS xvi.70). He entered into controversy with Roger Crab in answer to the latter's articles against Friends, 1659. 'Roger Crab was an interesting character, a vegetarian and water drinker, the leader of some people called Rationals, and commonly reputed to be a prophet. He lived near Uxbridge' (Beginnings of Quakerism). Crab (1621?-1680) was a native of Buckinghamshire (DNB). Though living quietly in the district Salter was repeatedly fined and imprisoned, but the numerous bequests in his will (in Friends House) dated 1691, indicate some means despite fines and imprisonment. He had long disputes with the 'priest' of Farnham Royal in whose parish he resided

Hannah Stringer (Stranger, Stanger) the wife of John Stringer or Stranger, of London, combmaker, was, with her husband, actively associated with Nayler in his sad doings in Bristol. 'One Reine of his Bridle, Mart. Symds led & Han. string: the other... & Hannah's husband went bare before him' (Swarth. MSS.i. 188). Fox wrote to Nayler in 1656, 'Marth simonds & stringer & his wiffe is denied for there lyes & slanders & soe Judged out with the truth' (ibid. iii. 195). But Hannah, then become Hannah Salter, by her marriage with Henry Salter of London, in 1666, repented of her former actions, gave forth a testimony of her repentance (Tanner, Friends in Bristol and Somersetshire, 1858, p.101), and was received back among Friends. SALTHOUSE, Alice (1811-1891) born Carter

Alice Carter, the only daughter of Thomas and Betty Carter, was born at Scotchergill, near Dent in Yorkshire, on 19 December 1811 (1). When she was two weeks old her mother died, and she was brought up by her grandmother.

After being governess, at the age of eighteen, to the children of Thomas Backhouse of York for eight years, she married Thomas Salthouse of Fleetwood where their first years together were spent. Later they moved to Preston, and had a family of four boys and a girl (2).

Circumstances brought her into the important sphere of service among those suffering through the cotton famine caused by the American Civil War.

Her attachment to the Society of Friends was deep and she was regular in attendance at Meetings.

In 1885 AS took a cold, which resulted in bronchitis. And, other complaints following, for five and a half years she was a patient invalid. During Yearly Meeting (while some of the family were in London) she took influenza, and died peacefully on 25 May 1891, aged 79 (3).

Robert Salthouse was a brother of Thomas Salthouse (i.203.1) and is so described in Swarth. MSS (eg. i.112, iii.173). He appears to have paid religious visits to the Isle of Man, to Ireland and other parts (ibid. i.197, 369). There are several of Salthouse's letters in Friends House. The prosecution of Salthouse in 1698, for 'Eight Pence Demanded for a Rectory Rent' forms the subject of a broadside entitled The Cry of Oppression. Alice Salthouse (who was widow of Thomas Goad of Baycliffe) died 1704.

Thomas Salthouse was the third son of William Salthouse of Dragley Beck, near Ulverston. His parents had 'a good Estate in the Outward' and from them 'he had been supplied' (Suff. i.579). He formed one of the Swarthmoor household at the time of Fox's first visit and was then convinced. There is much on record respecting the travel and suffering of Salthouse and Halhead in the South-West in 1655 and 1656 (Wounds of an Enemie, 1656; Wastfield, True Testimony, 1657). In 1670, Salthouse married Anne Upcott, of St Austell, daughter of the priest of the parish, and resided generally in Cornwall, near to Loveday Hambly, but frequently undertook preaching tours. 'Being at a meeting in prayer, he was seized with Illnesse, whereof he dyed the 29th 11 mo, and was buried the 1st day of ye 12 mo 1690' (F.P.T.)

SAMS, Joseph (1784-1860)

Joseph Sams, the son of Joseph Sams (fl 1779-1786 qv) and his wife Esther (born) of Wellington in Somerset, was born there on 26 February 1784(1). He was educated at Ackworth School from 1794 to 1798(2) and from 1804 to 1810 he was a reading and writing master at the school(3). He was married in 1807 to Mary Brady (1787-1834 qv) of Thorne in Yorkshire(4) and there were seven children(5).

On leaving Ackworth in 1810 he was appointed first master at a school established by the Society of Friends at Darlington. His time there was at first successful and he was well liked by his pupils, but it became somewhat clouded by the growing dissatisfaction of the proprietors. They disliked his habit of doing things on his own responsibility, without reference to the Committee, and the fact that he spent more time than was good for the school on his own pursuits of book-binding and selling and in keeping cows. He resigned his position and in 1817 he opened a school of his own.

He closed the school in 1824 and subsequently travelled extensively on the Continent and to Egypt, Syria and Palestine. He took advantage of his journeys to circulate copies of the Bible and at Alexandria he won the reluctant consent of the English Consul General to offer for the acceptance of the Pasha a beautifully bound copy of the Scriptures.. As a result of his travels he became a dealer in antiquities and in 1822 took business premises at Lincoln's Inn in London, where he also became a bookseller.

There is a curious and by no means favourable notice relating to this period of Joseph Sams' life in a review of The Book Hunter in London, which runs as follows:- "We wonder if the author, W. Roberts, knows the name of old Sams, the Quaker bookseller and miser, the most plausible old hypocrite and unmitigated old rogue that ever existed, whose skill in vamping up and doctoring a Cawood into a Fynson has been feebly imitated by our degenerate moderns, and at one time threatened to deluge the market with spurious editions. We have had rogues as unprincipled as Sams among those even Mr Roberts essays to immortalise, but none so clever as he."(6).

There was another side to Joseph Sams. By some he was considered an erudite Egyptologist and he was also an active supporter of the anti-slavery movement. He was present at the Anti-slavery Convention in London in 1840 and took part, with others, in the discussions. He also attended the second World's Anti-slavery Conference in 1843.

He was noted for his appearance in a three-cornered looped hat, called a three decker, with buckles to his knee breeches and also to his shoes, giving dignity to his appearance as a fine old English gentleman,(7) but perhaps appearances were a little deceptive. He was reputed to secret his money in a screw ferrule at the end of a walking stick.

Joseph Sams of Darlington died on 18 March 1860, at the age of seventy six(8).

SAMS, Sophia Elizabeth (1823-1897) born Sams

Sophia Elizabeth Sams, the youngest daughter of Joseph Sams () and his wife Mary (born) of Darlington in county Durham, was born there on 18 October 1823(1). She was the only survivor of a family of seven children and her mother died when she was only ten years old.

She was married in 1846 to her cousin Joseph Sams (1808-1862 qv), a banker of Somerton in Somerset and there were four children, born between the years 1851 to 1858, whose births were recorded by the Society(2). Later the family moved to Thornbury in Gloucestershire.

In her early married life she was remembered as unusually bright, charming and attractive. Later her character deepened and her sound judgment made her often a valued helper and counsellor; she also gave valuable service as an elder of her meeting. She never gave much expression to her religion, but her face showed the serenity which lay beneath her life.

SAMS, Sophia Elizabeth (1823-1897) born Sams

Sophia E. Sams, the youngest daughter of the late Joseph and Mary Sams of Darlington, was born there on 18 October 1823 (1). Her father was an orientalist (2), and her mother was a particularly lovely person. Sophia was the only survivor in a family of seven children. Their mother too, died of tuberculoses when Sophia was ten years old, and these early losses were a sad experience for her in her youth.

At the age of 23 years she married her cousin Joseph Sams (3) Manager of a branch bank at Somerton and there were 4 children (4). Later they moved to Thornbury, Gloucestershire. In 1862 Joseph Sams died. Her last home was at Weston-super-Mare.

In her early married years she is remembered as unusually bright, charming and attractive. Later her character deepened and her sound judgment made her often a helper and counsellor of others; and she was much valued as an Elder in the Meeting to which she belonged. Her buoyancy and cheerfulness continued to the end of her life. She never gave much expression to her religion, but her face showed the serenity that lay beneath.

She died at Weston-super-Mare at the age of 73 on 8 February 1897.

Thomas Sanders was an Ilmer Friend belonging to the Meeting at Meadle Farm. Damaris Sanders, of Meadle Meeting 1678, was probably the wife of Thomas. They met a few times, and then 'the eye being to much outwards to outward buisness, and yt not apearing' the Meeting was given up for a time ('Some Account concerning the Women's Monthly Meeting in the County of Bucks' from the Minute Book, printed Jnl FHS vii.63,64). SANGER, Frederick (1876-1937) ✓

Frederick Sanger, born 26 July 1876, was educated at Wellington and Cambridge, completing his medical education at St. Bartholomew's Hospital in 1899.

Although by nature he was a student rather than a practical man and might have had a brilliant career as a research worker, he chose to give his service to China at the C.M.S. Hospital, Hingwha, Fukien, until 1909. Before he returned home for health reasons he had founded a school for Chinese boys. He was always remembered with affection in token of which, in 1936, he received a silk scroll of commemoration.

While in practice in Gloucestershire he married Cicely Crewdson, whose father, though not in membership, came of a Cheshire Quaker family. This was Frederick Sanger's first introduction to Friends' way of life and thought. In 1923, when he settled with his wife and three children in Tanworth in Arden, he became a member of Bull Street Meeting, Birmingham.

He was anxious that opportunity should be given to other seekers to find in our Meetings for Worship help for their deepest human and spiritual needs. Largely through his concern, Meetings were started at Hall Green and Leamington. He was a keen member of the Monthly Meeting Visitation Committee, bringing inspiration to the small or weak meetings.

Frederick Sanger also took a keen interest in the education of Friends' children, and followed Alfred H. Bayes as Clerk to the Education Committee. His visits to the Schools and personal caring for the children will not soon be forgotten.

Yet in all his busy life, in his practice and in his work for peace, temperance and social justice, he devoted much of his time to study, meditation and prayer, rising early for his purpose. Thus his ministry was kept vivid and fresh and he was enabled to lead a life of radiant self-giving and friendship.

He died 5 May 1937

of St Germans in Cornwall, was married in 1803 to Clive Sansom was born at Finchley, N. London in 1910, the son of Arthur William Sansom.(1) He was educated at Southgate County School, Palmers Green and after working for a time as a clerk and salesman he began to attend evening classes in speech and drama. In 1934 he was a winner in both the lyric and dramatic verse at the Oxford Festival of Spoken Poetry. He continued his studies in speech training and became a lecturer, instructor and examiner in speech and drama, while at the same time pursuing his gift for writing poetry. In the thirties he met Ruth Large, a Tasmanian and a fellow student and they began to attend Winchmore Hill Meeting. They were married there in 1937 (2) and joined the Society shortly afterwards. During the war he registered as a conscientious objector and did landwork with Ruth for four years in spite of ill health and two operations.

In 1949 they visited Ruth's family in Tasmania and decided to stay there. He and Ruth were appointed supervisors of speech education for the Education Dept. of Tasmania and they continued in this work until 1965. Clive Sansom's contribution to Hobart Meeting was considerable, in his ministry, in his service as a clerk of elders and overseers and for a short time as M.M. clerk. He was a gentle and sensitive man, whose love of nature, understanding of people and depth and breadth of spirituality are reflected in all that he wrote. He also spoke out clearly on issues on which he felt deeply, particularly against injustice, greed and the violence done by man to nature. His poetry which was the major part of his life he saw as involving all aspects of living.

He had been unwell for some time, but died suddenly on March 29, 1981 aged about 71.(3)

SARFAS, Lucy Josephine (1878 - 1973) b. Glaisyer

Lucy Glaisyer was born on October 29, 1878, the daughter of Edward (1842 - 1918 qv.) and Jane (b. Brook) Glaisyer. Her father was described as a grocer of Leighton Buzzard.(1)

She was educated at Sidcot School, then gained one of the first scholarships to The Mount, and then studied botany, zoology and geology at Aberystwyth University. Apparently she then took up teaching as a career and moved to Ilford, Essex where she was very active with Young Friends and taught in the Bible Class for fourteen years.(2)

In 1915 she married Walter Sarfas (3) and they took up residence in Ilford in her husband's house.(4) Also living at Ilford for many years was her sister Isabella Margaret Glaisyer (1882 - 1966 qv.) There were two children Irene and Margaret.(5) She gave up teaching on her marriage and joined her husband in his particular interest in the Friends' Prayer League and Evangelistic Band; on his death in 1936 she took his place on the council of this body. After his death she moved to Southend, attending first at Leigh-on-Sea Meeting and then at Southend.(6) She served the Monthly Meeting for seventeen years as an overseer and for many years as an elder at Southend. She also represented London & Middlesex QM on Meeting for Sufferings from 1944 - 1945/6.(7)

She was concerned with contacts with other Christians and in 1954 she was elected president of the Southend & District Women's Free Church Council. She was generous with hospitality, a woman of deep kindness, serenity and sincerity and an unusual tenderness towards those whose revelation was less orthodox, although her own faith was rooted in her personal experience of Jesus and in the guidance of the scriptures.

She died on September 8, 1973 aged 94.

SATTERTHWAITE, Edward (-1707)

Edward Satterthwaite, son of Clement, of Colthouse, was a tanner and farmer of Town End in Colthouse, having married in 1665, Dorothy, daughter and heiress of George Braithwaite (-1681/2) of Town End. He had issue. His sufferings are recorded by Besse (Suff.i.311,329,ii.26). His wife died in 1678, and in 1680 he married Agnes Nicholson, 'widow and relict of Mongo Nicholson, late of Wood Hall'. She was a daughter of Giles Walker, of Walkerground, Hawkshead. In the entry of his second marriage, Edward is described as 'Tanner and Widdower'.

The Dorothy of page 363 would almost certainly be the above named, although there was another Dorothy Satterthwaite (wife of George of Skinner How) at the time.

SATTERTHWAITE, Michael (1784-1867)

Michael Satterthwaite, the twin son of Edward Satterthwaite (1755?-1794 qv) and his wife Mary, born Parkinson, of Preston in Lancashire, was born there on 5 October 1784(1). His father died when he was nine years old and shortly afterwards he was sent to Ackworth School, where he remained from 1794 to 1798(2). In due course he was apprenticed to the leather trade, becoming a currier at Preston(3), where he lived all his life. He was married in 1819 to Ellen Wareing(4), but his wife died a few months later(5); he subsequently married again(6), but this second marriage was also brief and he had no children(7).

His business was an extensive one, absorbing a great deal of his time and energy, but he remained throughout his life a firm upholder of the principles of the Society and its faithful servant. He was well acquainted with the writings of early Friends and was convinced that the truth as professed by the Society was in accordance with New Testament teaching. He was appointed an elder before he was thirty and held this office for more than fifty years; he was a man of few words, but his judgment was greatly valued throughout his quarterly meeting.

He was actively engaged in many philanthropic enterprises in Preston. He was treasurer of the Preston auxiliary of the Bible Society, which he helped to form, and at the time of his death was Poor Law Guardian; during the severe hardship caused by the cotton famine his duties were particularly onerous and he was always very much moved by the plight of the children of the poor. He enjoyed dispensing hospitality and his house was always open to Friends travelling in the ministry, and to many others.

He was an active trustee of Ackworth School and died very suddenly at Halifax, while returning from a visit to Ackworth General Meeting, on 6 July 1867(8). He was eighty two and the last survivor of a numerous family.

William Savery was a business Friend of Philadelphia and a prominent minister. He was in Europe - in the British Isles and on the continent - 1796-1798, when he was "constantly dropping those benevolent sentiments at which sectarian bigotry must always hide his head". (J. Jenkins)

SAVILLE, Richard (1854-1920)

Richard Saville was born 18 October 1854.

He received strength to rise above his physical limitations and his bright sunny spirit made him a veritable messenger of the gospel among his fellow men.

Richard Saville had no education in the generally accepted sense of the word, yet he 'was educated by God' and lived in the light of that vision received from above. When advanced in years, he was eager to profit from the educational advantages offered by the Swarthmore Settlement for religious and social study.

He died in Leeds 4 February 1920.

SAYCE, Deborah (1810-1844) after 1842 Irwin

See IRWIN, Deborah (1810-1844) born Sayce)

SAYCE, Edward (1813-1892)

Edward Sayce, the son of John Sayce (1771-1841 qv) and his wife Elisabeth, born Price, of Stockport in Cheshire, was born there on 28 August 1813(1). He was educated at Ackworth School from 1823 to 1827(2) and on leaving school he became a woollen draper at Stockport(3). He was married in 1837 to Deborah Ann Smith of Manchester(4) and there were ten children(5).

About 1842 he went to Australia(6) and entered into business in Melbourne. At that date Friends had no place for meeting, but very shortly Edward Sayce's house had become a centre for the Society, where meetings for worship were held regularly and to which both resident and visiting Friends turned naturally.

About 1853 Edward Sayce and his family returned to England for the education of his children(7) and during this period he was recorded a minister by Tottenham Monthly Meeting(8) In 1863 the family returned to Australia and he resumed the active part he had formerly taken in the affairs of the Society there. When Melbourne Annual Meeting was established, Edward Sayce became its first Clerk and on different occasions he visited the meetings in the neighbouring colonies.

"It is impossible to estimate the value of his practical expression of kindly Christian interest to very many who, in those unsettled times, were in danger of drifting away from all good influences, but it is certain that not a few still remain who can gladly testify to the lasting benefit it has been to them."

Truly one of the founding fathers of Australian Quakerism, Edward Sayce was a man of wisdom whose sense of personal inadequacy neither prevented him from undertaking the most exacting service nor serving as the Mayor of Hawthorn(9).

He died on 25 September 1892, in his eightieth year.(10).

SCALES, John (1712-1770)

John Scales was born at Loddon in Norfolk in 1712 and was brought up in the Church of England. At about the age of 17 he was 'favoured with a gracious visitation of the divine love and became convinced of the truth'. Despite the many discouragements he met with he joined the Society of Friends, and through his obedience to the light he had been given at the age of 18 years he began to minister publicly, his ministry being short, 'plain, sound and edifying'. He was a diligent attender of Friends' Meetings, a man of peace, and his conversation was 'solid, open and instructive'.

After an illness patiently borne he died 2 January 1770, aged 57, a minister for about 30 years, and was buried in the Friends burial ground at Worlingham.
