SON, Laurence William Adey (1899-1916)

Laurence W.A. Horton was born at Woburn Sands, Bedfordshire, on 5 March 1899, son of William John and Beatrice Maud Horton (1). His great-grandfather was one of the 'six men of Gloucester' who restored Robert Raikes's Sunday school there.

1913, av) He was delicate in health and had to spend 3 years in bed in an open air shelter before he was 10. During this time he had the use of Gwendolen Crewdson's library; he was taught to paint; and he was a talented musician. Later he attended Kent College, Canterbury, where he formed the desire to become a doctor. Ill health again overtook him, however, and after two attacks of measles, with no hope of recovery. He accepted his fate with courage and fortitude, but longed that he might be able to do just one thing to make his life worth while.

On 3 August 1916 he was on the beach near Chichester (where his parents then lived) with his two sisters and young brother, when cries for help were heard from two young men, non-swimmers, who were caught in a dangerous current. Laurence Horton had been a good swimmer before his illness, and in spite of an attempt to prevent him he plunged in and rescued the two men, but was himself drowned before rescue could reach him. His parents received many tributes to his outstanding courage, and the Royal Humane Society awarded him posthumously a certificate of valour.

HOSKINS, James (1688/9-1742/3)

James Hoskins, the son of James and Martha Hoskins of Westminster, was born there on 9 xi [Jan] 1688/9 (1).

He married in 1714 (2) and had at least six children (3). He and his wife both travelled in the ministry, he to Scotland (4) and Ireland (5) and she to Wales and the west country (6).

However, he became involved, with Thomas Story (1662?-1742) qv, in the loss of a considerable sum of money belonging to the Pennsylvania Company caused by the collapse of the South Sea Bubble in 1720. Because of this he was eventually disowned by Westminster M<sup>U</sup> in 1722 (7). He protested bitterly that he had not been allowed to answer the charges made against him and that Thomas Story's guilt was as great as if not greater than his own. The controversy dragged on, with much venom and aspersions on the morals of both parties, not only in relation to money matters, until at least 1727 (8).

NOTES & REFERENCES

- 1 London & Middlesex QM Births digest: there are two entries, one spelling the surname Hoskings, but in neither case is an occupation of the father given. He is not of Cumberland as Smith states (Smith's Catalogue of Friends books Vol 1, p 976). The evidence for this correction occurs in The just defence of James Hoskins, [1724], where Hoskins' 'brothers' S. and Joseph Jenkins are referred to, wherein the London & Middlesex digests, from which we learn that

- (i) James Hoskins senior died 16 vii [Sept] 1693 aged 30
- (ii) His widow Martha was married 4 iii [May] 1697 to Adam Jenkins

- (iii) Three children of this marriage are recorded,

Samuel	b.	3 iii	[May]	1698
Joseph	b.	12 vi	[Aug]	1699
Peter	b.	20 ii	[Apr]	1702

The first two of these would be the 'brothers' referred to, which makes it all but certain that the pamphleteer is the James Hoskins described above and not a James Hoskins who originally came from Cumberland.

Born Fenn, of pious parents in London, 1mo. (March) 3, 1693. At the age of nineteen in 1712 she came to Philadelphia as an indentured servant to Robert Davis, with his wife and two daughters and served them three years, for her passage. She then taught in Quaker families at Plymouth, Penna. and among the Welsh Quakers at Haverford, and finally became housekeeper in the large establishment of David and Grace Lloyd, who set her free when she felt that she must travel in the ministry. She went with Elizabeth Levis (afterwards Shipley) to the Barbados in 1724, upon which occasion Thomas Chalkley sent a loving paternal letter of encouragement and advice to the two young women, which is given at length in his Journal (1st. ed. p.139)

Jane Fenn went to England in the ship 'Dorothy', John Bedford master, returning in 1730. David Lloyd died soon after her return, 2mo; (April) 6, 1731. She married a Friend named Hoskins in 1738, but always lovingly attended Grace Lloyd, until the latter's death in 1760. In 1748 Elizabeth Hudson accompanied her to England and John Smith, (MS Diary) mentions spending the evening of 1mo. (March) 12th. at John Reynell's in Philadelphia, with them before they sailed on the 25th in one of his vessels, the 'Pembroke' for Dublin. Jane Hoskins was with John Woolman in New England in 1756, and died about 1770. (Friends' Library, I. 460. Journal Fr'ds Hist. Soc. London. III. p.104)

William Hoskins was the son of John and Anne Hoskins of Austle, where he was born in October 1784. During his youth he attended the established church with his father and for a short time was associated with the Methodists. His mother was a Friend and her influence, together with Friends' books, led him to accept the principles of the Society.

When he was about twenty two he commenced business at Helston as a plumber and brazier and attended, usually on foot, Marazion or Redruth Meetings, each of which was some ten miles distant. In 1808 he was admitted into membership of the Society(1). About 1814 he moved to Falmouth and in 1820 he was married to Eleanor Stephens (1792-1837 qv) of Hayle in Cornwall(2); there were ten children(3).

He was appointed an elder in 1827. He later appeared in the ministry and was recorded a minister in 1835(4).* In 1837, when he was about to leave home for a religious visit to Bristol, his wife died, leaving him with eight young children. Although in deep distress, he accomplished his service and shortly afterwards paid two further visits, one in the north and one in Devonshire, although he was suffering from great bodily weakness.

William Hoskins of Falmouth died on 27 October 1840, at the age of fifty five(5) and was buried in the Friends burial ground at Falmouth.

James Hotham, the son of Robert and Betty Hotham of Sheffield, was born there on 1 June 1805(1). He was educated at Ackworth School from 1817 to 1819(2). He became a linen draper in Leeds and was married in 1833 to Sarah Mallinson (1812-1875 qv), the daughter of David Mallinson (1762-1833 qv) and his wife Phebe of Sheffield(3); there were six children(4).

The family lived in a large old fashioned house just across the bridge at Briggate in Leeds. The ground floor was given over to the shop, James Hotham's apprentices occupied the upper floors and the family lived on the first floor. It was not a very healthy situation and they went in the summer to Chapel Town, where the fresh country air made a delightful change from the town.

James Hotham had a happy disposition and his buoyant and equable spirits were a delight to all who knew him. His health appeared to be good, although his heart was not strong, but he died quite suddenly on 7 February 1850, at the age of forty four(5).

HOTHAM, Sarah (1812-1875) born Mallinson

Sarah Mallinson, the daughter of David Mallinson (1762-1833 qv) and his wife Phebe, born Buck, of Sheffield, was born there on 21 December 1812(1). She was married in 1833 to James Hotham (1805-1850 qv) of Leeds and there were six children(2).

Sarah Hotham had a busy family life. Her husband was a draper in Leeds, with several apprentices who lived on the premises and she had to look after them as well as her growing family. James Hotham died suddenly in 1850 at the early age of forty four and it is clear from Sarah's letters and records at this time that with his death the light had gone out from her life. Her eldest daughter Elizabeth was her devoted helper and comforter, while the cheerful disposition of her son Robert did much to contribute to the brightness of home life.

Perhaps partly owing to the low lying situation of the shop, the health of the family was poor, so that it was part of the Hotham creed to get away for good holidays every year. When the children were young they used to spend part of the summer in the country at Chapel Bank and in 1854 Sarah Hotham, with a heavy heart, took them all to spend the winter at Torquay; in 1864 they spent many months at Malvern.

Sarah had to face much sorrow in her life. Robert died just before his eighteenth birthday; he was a general favourite and the whole family were desolated by his death. The younger son, James Edward, was also delicate and caused anxiety. Sarah lived to see three of her daughters happily married and died at Headingley near Leeds on 27 March 1875, at the age of sixty two(3).

HOW, Ann (1761?-1853) born Palin

Ann Palin, the daughter of John and Elizabeth Palin of Woodbridge in Suffolk, was born about the year 1761(1). She was married in 1807 to Thomas How(2), but the marriage was childless(3).

The greater part of her life was spent in London, where she played a considerable part in many benevolent institutions and was especially interested in a House of Refuge she helped to establish, for servants of good character and destitute women.

Her husband retired from business in 1836 and they moved back to Woodbridge, where he died in 1841. She still continued to find a field of usefulness and devoted a considerable part of her limited income to the needs of the poor.

1639 wrote The Sufficiency of the Spirit's Teaching.... In all there were seven editions of this tract "tending to prove human learning to be no help to spiritual understanding of the word of God."

1639 John Goodwin, parson of Coleman St., London, said a man could not preach except he had human learning. This statement was challenged, and it was alleged that Samuel How, an unlearned man, could preach and a text from Peter was given to How. He then preached the sermon which was ultimately published under the title given above.

HOWARD, Edmund (1709/10 - 1798)

Edmund Howard was born on 27 xii [February] 1709/10, the son of Simon and Elizabeth Howard of Winkfield (1).

In 1724 he was apprenticed as a gardener to George Burr of Chelsea; he worked in this area until 1736, when he was gardener for a year with Thomas Revel at Fetcham in Surrey. The following year he returned to Chelsea, where he was seen by Sir Hans Sloane who was just buying Beaufort House, and who put Edmund Howard in to have care of it.

After the death of his brother, who had been a clock-and watchmaker, Edmund Howard learnt and carried on this business. In 1760 he made the clock for Chelsea Old Church (2).

About 1745 he married a former fellow-servant, Elizabeth (3); there were several children (4). Elizabeth died on 26 March 1797 (5).

Edmund Howard died on 27 December 1798 aged 88, and was buried at Hammersmith (6).

HOWARD, Elizabeth Fox (1873-1957)

(Tuckett) BC *

Elizabeth Fox Howard was born on 6 March 1873, the only daughter of Eliot and Charlotte [Fox] Howard. Brought up an Anglican, she did not join the Society of Friends until 1903. She was soon recognised as one of the natural leaders of her generation of Friends, and she attended the Scarborough Conference of 1905, and went to Woodbrooke as one of the earliest students. She edited "Friends Fellowship Papers", and in 1912 went to the U.S.A. with a group on a practical pastoral visit to Friends.

During the 1914-18 war she was a visiting Quaker Chaplain to C.Os in prison and worked for enemy aliens.

When the German Emergency Committee opened a Rest House at Bad Pyrmont in 1933, to care for victims of the Nazi regime, Elizabeth Fox Howard became one of the reta of hostesses.

Her international interest and service was wide, including beside the Rest House and aid for refugees, the Friends Service Council and the India Committee but this did not limit her service in her own locality and in her own Monthly Meeting, and in particular her own Meeting at Wanstead.

HOWARD, Luke (1772-1864)

Luke Howard was a well-known and prominent Friend of London YM. His views on various subjects differed from those of many of his fellow-members (see e.g. J. Friends hist. soc. vol.17 p.104). He lived at Tottenham and had a country house at Ackworth. He was a Fellow of the Royal Society. He edited 'The Yorkshireman' 1833-1837 and wrote various scientific treatises. He resigned his membership at the time of the Beacon controversy.

HOWARD, Rachel (1803-1892) born Lloyd

Rachel Lloyd, the daughter of Samuel Lloyd I (1768-1849 qv) and his wife Rachel, born Braithwaite of Kendal (1768-1854 qv), of Birmingham and Farm, was born in Birmingham on 15 April 1803(1).

In 1825 she married Robert Howard (1801-1871 qv), the son of Luke Howard (1772-1864 qv), the meteorologist; there were eight children of the marriage(2).

In 1839 her father resigned from the Society at a time of great ferment, when the spread of Evangelicalism, brought to a head by the publication in December 1834 of Isaac Crewdson's 'Beacon to the Society of Friends' caused many valued Friends to question the accepted principles of the Society(3). Rachel's father-in-law Luke Howard was also a supporter of Isaac Crewdson(4). Rachel followed her father's views and her resignation and that of her husband was accepted by Tottenham Monthly Meeting in September 1839(5). Both her father and her father-in-law subsequently joined the Plymouth Brethren and it is likely that Rachel and her husband did so also(6).

HOWARD, William (c1690-1755)

William Howard was probably born about 1690, the son of Richard Howard (1666?-1703 qv) of London (1). He became a brazier in Southwark, and in 1721 married, as his first wife, Hannah (1696-1726 qv) Penford (2); of this marriage it would appear that only three children reached infancy (3). He married again in 1739; by this marriage, to Elizabeth (16932-1750 qv) O'Hearne, a widow and member of Devonshire House MM, there seem to have been no children (4).

HOWARD, Robert (1801-1871) He was born at Horsleydown MM from at least the early 1730s until he and his wife moved to Poole, Dorset, about 1742 (5). He died on 1 August 1755 (6), leaving a part of his estate in trust, for payments to young Friends of Poole MM and of Horsleydown MM. He had a son, Richard Howard (1769-1852) (7).

Robert Howard, son of Luke (1772-1864, qv) and Mariabella (born Eliot, 1769-1852) Howard of Plaistow, was born there on 27 June 1801 (1).

He married in 1825 Rachel Lloyd (2); there were 8 children (3).

1812 Attended Western Quarterly Meeting and Baltimore Yearly Meeting. A.H. was very neat in his person, and liked to have everything about him clean and in order. He was a short thick-set man, inclined to be stout. He had a loud clear voice and had a prophetic gift which led his to be called "the Quaker seer".

Charles Howell was born at Gorey, Wexford Co., Ireland, in the year 1671, and brought up in the Church of England. He was apprenticed to a sadler, Nicholas Lock, a Friend, through whose influence he became a Friend.

He underwent long imprisonment through his refusal to pay Tithes, and soon after his release, about 1695, he received the gift of the Ministry, and travelled in Ireland and also in some parts of England and Wales.

"His Ministry was plain, sound and suitable. He was a diligent Attender of Meetings, both for Worship and Discipline, and of an exemplary Life and Conversation."

He died 23.viii.[October] 1740, aged about sixty nine years, and a Minister about forty four years.

Testimony of Munster Province-meeting, Ireland, in TCMD vol.1 p.154, printed in A Collection of Testimonies, 1760, p.125. The testimony is summarized in Mary Leadbeater, Biographical notices of members of the Society of Friends who were resident in Ireland, 1823, pp.200-201.

Bruce Howell was born on 27 September 1913 in about the year 1914, (1) and he joined the Society of Friends in St. Albans in about the year 1957. (2)

He served with the Friends Ambulance Unit from 1943 - 1946 in Italy, Syria, Lebanon and France, visiting Brummana on three occasions. For the next five years he taught English at the newly founded American College, in Damascus, and then in 1951 he returned to St. Albans as senior lecturer in English at the College of Further Education. In October 1963 he was appointed to Brummana High School in Lebanon, a post he retained until he retired in 1979. He made a great contribution to the life of the school, he had a deep concern for the spiritual witness of Friends and also was greatly involved in working for the spiritual welfare of the students. As senior master he exerted a quiet but profound influence, and assisted in many dramatic productions in the school.

He returned to England in 1979 and was looking forward to a stay in Cyprus but he died suddenly at the home of his two sisters in Birmingham on August 5, 1979 at the age of 65.

HOWGILL, Francis (1618-1668/9)

Francis Howgill was of Todthorne, near Grayrigg, Westmorland. He received a College education in preparation for the Episcopalian ministry, but being dissatisfied with this, and in search for truth, he joined the Independents and subsequently the Baptists. At Sedbergh fair, 1652, through Fox's preaching, the light dawned, and Howgill speedily took a first-rank position among the early Friends. Imprisonment soon followed his public avowal of Quakerism, Kirkby Stephen being the first place of detention. In 1654, Howgill commenced his labours in London, in close association with Edward Burrough. A great impression was made, and it is said that in 1678 there were 10,000 Quakers within the Metropolitan area (Beck and Ball, London Friends' Meetings, 1869, p.32). Howgill also visited Bristol, East Anglia, Scotland, Ireland, etc. While in Kendal market-place engaged in business pursuits, he was apprehended, praemunire and committed to Appleby Gaol, where he lay for five years until liberated by death. He wrote much; his writings were collected and published in 1676, under the title, The Dawning of the Gospel Day. His Advice to his Daughter has been several times reprinted. There are many letters in Friends House written by Howgill.

HOWIE, Laura (1844-1920) born BEALE

Laura Beale was born 22 May 1844, the daughter of Joseph and Margaret Beale of Mount Mellick, Ireland.

In 1854, her family left Ireland taking her with them to Tasmania. After a few years the family moved to Melbourne. In 1873 she married Samuel Howie in Melbourne meeting house; during the course of their married life, five children were born to them. Her husband died in 1914.

Her especial concerns were the peace and woman's suffrage movements, both of which claimed much of her time and energy. 'She lived peace, and followed it, and was herself a peace-maker & she was keenly active in the effort to abolish the compulsory military training of boys and youths. She had no word of reproach for the wrong-doer, only, one could see a shadow in the kind eyes that spoke of sorrow and pain, that all was not right'.

Laura Howie was a much-beloved overseer, 'a born overseer, with the loving oversight of a mother over her family'. She was for many years convenor of the ministry and oversight committee: her memory for Friends was remarkable and her hospitality was all-embracing: her house 'Eulo' was always 'open house'. She visited a great deal and kept in touch with many people until failing health forced her to visit only within easy tram-ride of her home.

She died 14 July 1920.

HOWIE, Samuel (1830-1912)

SAMUEL HOWIE was born at Edenderry, Ireland in 1830, the son of Solomon and Mary Loveday (Fayle) Ho~~ie~~<sup>ie</sup>. On the death of his parents he was brought up by his uncle and aunt, and after leaving Newton School was apprenticed to the ironmongery business.

In 1853 he emigrated to Australia by sailing ship and entered into business in Melbourne which he had to give up after a serious accident in 1882. Though unable thereafter to take part in many activities, he was for years an Overseer and Treasurer of his local Meeting.

"To know him was to love and honour him, and in his Meeting he was trusted and revered by young and old. As a host he kept open house for all visiting Friends, and with his dear wife gave to many a true home from home."

Samuel Howie died on 12 August 1912.

Ann Adlington, one of the nine children of William and Dorothy Adlington, was born near Mansfield in 1836 and educated partly at Ackworth. She was active in British schools and night schools and Sunday school.

In 1866 she married Dr. Francis Hewitt of Nottingham, and their home was always full of guests, especially at QM times. She was Clerk to the Women's QM of Derby, Lincoln and Nottingham, and an elder. In 1886-7 she and her husband made a world tour and visited Friends in the USA, New Zealand, and Australia. On board ship they discussed Friends' principles and discouraged any form of betting. During her later years when she was confined to her house in winter she held at home a Bible class for the children of Friends and attenders.

She died on 28 September 1908, much loved for the sympathy and high standards which those who knew her valued much.

HOWITT, Francis Tantum (1796-1879)

Francis Tantum Howitt, the son of Thomas Howitt (1763?-1848 qv) and his wife Phebe (born Tantum, 1759-1840 qv) of Heanor in Derbyshire, was born there on 24 November 1796(1). He was educated at Ackworth School from 1807 to 1808(2).

He became a farmer and maltster at Heanor(3) and was twice married. He married firstly in 1833 Ann Bowman (1805-1847 qv) of Bakewell in Derbyshire(4) and there were five children(5). He married secondly in 1850 Maria Burtt (1814-1895 qv) of Gainsborough in Lincolnshire(6), but the marriage was apparently childless(7).

He was recorded a minister of the Society by Chesterfield Monthly Meeting on 5 January 1870(8).

Francis Tantum Howitt of Heanor died very peacefully on 3 March 1879, at the age of eighty three(9).

HOWITT, Francis (1836-1897)

Francis Howitt, the second son of Francis Tantum Howitt (1796-1879 qv) and his first wife Ann, born Bowman, of Heanor in Derbyshire, was born there on 19 September 1836(1). He was educated at Ackworth School from 1846 to 1851 and was a model scholar, chosen to be "Lodge-keeper," the highest office a boy could attain. On leaving school he was placed with his uncle Henry Brady of Gateshead on Tyne, a medical practitioner. He studied at Newcastle-upon-Tyne School of Medicine and afterwards in London. He obtained his M.R.C.S. (England) and L.S.A. in 1858 and the degree of M.D. at the University of St Andrews in 1859. He began to practise in Nottingham in 1862.

He was married in 1866 to Ann Adlington (1836-1908 qv), with whom he was at Ackworth(2); she was the daughter of William Adlington (1805-1872 qv) of Kings Mill, Mansfield and there were seven children(3). She became his constant stay and companion in all his work. His influence in his profession was very great; he was spoken of as the beloved physician, the friend and adviser of his patients. So devoted was he to his work that he took no leading part in the political and social life of the town.

By 1886 the constant work had affected his health and he took a long rest in a tour round the world in company with his wife. The change of air and scene and the complete rest to mind and body greatly restored him and he was able to return to his beloved profession. But in 1895 he had influenza, which left him very weak and he tried a sea voyage to the Antipodes, without much benefit. Early in 1896 he went with his wife and sister to Penzance, but the day after he arrived he developed typhoid fever. He longed to go home and attempted the journey, but only reached Birmingham and the home of his son-in-law Edward Cadbury (1873-1948 qv). There he died peacefully in his sleep on 29 March 1897(4) at the age of sixty.

HOWITT, Phebe (1759-1840) born Tantum

Phebe Tantum, the daughter of Francis Tantum ( - ) and his wife Elizabeth (born ) of The Fall, Heanor in Derbyshire, was born there on 18 May 1759(1).

She was married in 1786 to Thomas Howitt (1763?-1848 qv), a hosier of Heanor and there were seven children, one of whom died in infancy(2).

She was a truly pious and affectionate woman, with a sensitive and energetic nature. Wherever there was distress, her immediate desire was to relieve it and amongst the poor she was a general mother. In all their troubles and sadnesses she was the first person to whom they turned. She had a wide knowledge of simple herbal remedies and was equally concerned for the spiritual welfare of those she tried to help.

People of all sorts sent for her freely, as they would for the doctor or the minister and when on wintry nights she was called up to people who were taken ill, she sometimes had to go for a mile or more through dark, solitary fields and miry lanes, deep in snow. Nothing could prevent her from going. She would put on a thick cloak and hood and strong shoes and set off, accompanied by her maid servant carrying a lantern.

She had a most fervent love of God and belief in his everlasting mercy, but although she was convinced that Jesus Christ was the certain and unchangeable Saviour of sinners, she was plain and uncompromising in her denunciation of hardened impenitents. Her words were like thunder and lightning to them, striking fear into their hearts.

Phebe Howitt of Heanor died on 25 November 1840, at the age of eighty two(3).

HOWITT, Thomas (1763?-1848)

Thomas Howitt, the son of William and Mary Howitt of Heanor in Derbyshire, was born about the year 1763(1). The Howitts had once owned considerable property in Derbyshire, but had dissipated their wealth by an extravagant way of life.

HOWITT, Samuel (1765?-1822) nm

Samuel Howitt, painter and etcher, born about 1765, is said to have been a 'member of an old Nottinghamshire quaker family' (1). No evidence for this has been traced (1980) (2).

HOWSON, Grace Ethel ( 1886 ? - 1962 )

Grace Howson was born in about the year 1886 (1) a daughter of John Robert and Ellen Howson. We have no details of her early life nor of her career but she appears in Lancs & Cheshire QM printed list of members for 1914 under her father's name and living at Lancaster. She seems to have spent her life in that area.

She was not robust and always found using her voice a physical strain but for years she worked for Home Service Committee extension work, addressing public meetings, leading and teaching weekend gatherings, mid-week evening meetings and arranging study groups, including regular meetings at Easter at Yelland, and also selecting and persuading those whom she needed to take part. She also served on Meeting for Sufferings and the Agenda Committee.(2) She was of tremendous strength to Lancashire & Cheshire QM and even when she could not travel far afield she would find isolated Friends whom she could visit and with whom she could keep in touch.

She died on April 28, 1962 aged 76.

Barbara Hoyland was born in London in 1764, the daughter of William and Sarah Wheeler, who brought her up in the rites of the Established Church. Her parents both died before her 19th year, and she lived a while with the family of an intimate acquaintance. 'Here she was engaged in a course of speculative reading, by which her mind became unhappily entangled in the specious snares of scepticism and infidelity.' However, at the age of 21 she visited relatives in Yorkshire, and 'During the time she spent among her relations, she was brought to serious reflection on her own peculiar situation; and her mind appears to have gradually recovered from the delirium of strongly excited passions, and from the shock, which religious duties and obligations had received from the innovations of folly, false philosophy and vain deceit...'

About this time she met William Hoyland, whom she eventually married, after which they lived near Handsworth-Woodhouse. They had at least three children (1). Not until three years after her marriage did she become acquainted with the Friends' Meeting, which occurred when she was prevented from attending her usual place of worship. She was deeply moved and some time later continued to regularly attend the Friends' Meetings and to adopt the manner of dress and address of the Society. She was admitted into the Society in 1792 and about a year later entered the ministry at her own meeting at Woodhouse. In 1797 she and her husband moved to Sheffield, where she was involved in the service of families of her Monthly Meeting. In 1812 she similarly visited friends in Bristol. In the meantime her husband and two children had died. She moved with her remaining family to Bradford, and continued a member of Brighouse Monthly Meeting the rest of her life, during which she made additional visits to other parts of the nation and held public meetings.

After a long illness she died 23 April 1829, and was buried at Friends' Burial Ground at Bradford.

HOYLAND, Elizabeth (1758-1839) born Barlow

24

Elizabeth Barlow, the daughter of John Barlow and his wife Anne, born Ward, of Sheffield, was born there on 4 July 1758(1). Her mother died when she was about eleven years old, but she was from an early age inclined towards a religious life and not only was she enabled to overcome a taste for youthful gaiety but when she was about twenty one she made a public testimony to the Truth.

She was married in 1781 to John Hoyland (1751-1831 ev), but there were apparently no children of the marriage(2). In 1784, with her friend Esther Tuke, she made a series of visits in the neighbourhood of London and from then until 1816 she was frequently away on ministerial journeys in various parts of England; she also went three times to Scotland and once to Dunkirk and on many of these visits she was accompanied by her friend Martha Smith. In 1818 she and her husband moved to Northampton, where she was an example of diligence in attending meeting and was often engaged therein in short, lively testimony. In 1837 she attended General Meeting at Ackworth, visiting the families of Friends on her way to and from the school.

Humility and love were the outstanding characteristics of her testimony. She was a consistent example of plainness in dress and speech and was concerned that these peculiarities of Friends should survive. For many years she took a lively and active part in attempts to spread an interest in the Bible among the poor; her sympathy with their afflictions was quickly aroused and she frequently relieved their needs from her own slender resources.

She died on 7 October 1839(3) after an illness of about eight months and was buried at Northampton.

Cadbury.(1) She was educated at Edgbaston High School and at St. James' School, Malvern. During her childhood the family, of which she was a devoted member, moved to The Manor House, Northfield.

In 1919 she married Geoffrey Hoyland at Bournville.(2) Shortly afterwards he was appointed headmaster of The Downs School, Colwall, and for the next twenty years they devoted themselves to the life of the school. In 1940 Geoffrey Hoyland retired from the school and they moved to Stroud(3) where they involved themselves in a wide variety of activities. The list of her activities includes - the YWCA, the National Council of Women, the Liberal Association ( at local level), The Bournville Village Trust, the Stonehouse Centre for the Mentally Handicapped, work with old people, the Painswick Music Society, the Three Choirs Festival and others.

She and Geoffrey were largely instrumental in restarting Painswick Friends Meeting (4) of which each was an elder, and also the Painswick Council of Churches. Geoffrey was incapacitated for some 2½ years before his death in 1965 and Dorothea nursed him devotedly during all that time, being over 70 years old herself. She loved travel, having travelled widely, but also loved her home and garden. She was a great strength to her local meeting and to the wider Society of Friends, serving on several central committees. (5)

She died on January 31, 1971, aged 78.

HOYLAND, Geoffrey (1889-1965)

Geoffrey Hoyland was born at Birmingham on 15 December 1889, the son of John William (1855-1927, qv) and Rachel Anna (born Somervell) Hoyland. He was educated at King Edward's School, Birmingham, at Birmingham University (where his study of physics was interrupted by illness) and at St. John's College Cambridge, where he first read mathematics, but graduated in history.

In 1919 he married Elsie Dorothea Cadbury (1): there was one child (2).

Geoffrey's first appointment was as Assistant Master at Uppingham Junior School. In 1920 he became Headmaster of the Downs School at Colwall, near Malvern, where he remained until 1940. Illness made his retirement necessary and the school was handed over to his brother, W. F. Hoyland. Geoffrey Hoyland served on the Sidcot Committee 1942-1947 (3). He was a scholar, a lecturer and a writer, whose great zest for life made him an inspired teacher. He died on 17 June 1965 at his home, Tockwells House, Painswick, Gloucestershire.

HOYLAND, John (1752-1831)

John Hoyland, the son of John and Sarah Hoyland of Sheffield, was born there on 11 December 1752(1). Nothing is at present (1976) traced of his early life and education. He was married in 1781 to Elizabeth Barlow (1758-1839 qv)(2), but the marriage was apparently childless(3). His wife as Elizabeth Hoyland became a minister well known and esteemed in the Society.

John Hoyland's association with Friends appears to have undergone some interruption and for a time he left the Society(4). In 1818 he and his wife left Yorkshire and went to live in Northampton(5). Richard Cockin, with William Smith and Mordecai Casson, had an appointment to sit with him in 1821 and the outcome appeared to Richard Cockin to be satisfactory(6). He was in membership at the time of his death on 12 September 1831(7), in his seventy ninth year.

HOYLAND, John Somervell (1887-1957)

John S.Hoyland, the son of John William (1855-1927,qv) and Rachel Anna (born Somervell) Hoyland was born in Birmingham on 12 December 1887 (1). He was educated at King Edward's School, Birmingham, and Christs College, Cambridge, and also at Hartford Theological Seminary, Conn., USA.

During and after his time at Cambridge he was very active in Young Friends' activities, including the Swanwick Conference 1911. His contact with American Friends helped to bring about a visit to USA by English young Friends in 1912.

In 1912 he began missionary work in India under the FFMA, first at Friends High School, Hoshangabad, later at Hislop College (Scottish Presbyterian), Nagpur, where he was professor of history and warden of a Quaker hostel.

In 1913 he married Helen Doncaster of Sheffield (2) : there were three children (3). Helen Hoyland died in 1919. In 1921 he married Jessie M. Marais (4): they had three children (5).

In 1929, having ended his service in India, he joined the staff of Woodbrooke, and for several years he and his wife were wardens of Holland House. He retired from Woodbrooke in 1953 and served for two or three years as field secretary for the Friends Peace Committee.

He was the author of many books and pamphlets, his devotional writings being especially valuable.

His deeply religious faith found expression in practical action, in work camps and relief work, of however humble a nature.

He died on 30 October 1957.

HOYLAND, John William (1855-1927)

John William Hoyland, the son of William Wheeler and Anna Maria Hoyland of Moss Side, Manchester was born there on 3 October 1855 (1).

In 1872 his family removed from the north of England to Birmingham. A few years later he became associated with a manufacturing hardware business in Birmingham and continued in this for more than 20 years. He was not very successful in business, this arising in part from his scrupulous care in discharging financial obligations and his care for his work people.

In 1886 he married Rachel Anna Somervell of Kendal. They had two sons (2). Rachel Anna Hoyland died 7 years later.

John William Hoyland throughout all this period was working in many activities including the Young Peoples' meeting at Severn Street; Adult school teaching and the Friends monthly meeting.

In 1905 the Friends Foreign Mission Association board removed its training home from London to Kingsmead, Selly Oak, Birmingham in order that it might be near Woodbrooke and share its advantages. John William Hoyland was invited to be warden. He was at that time virtually unknown beyond the boundaries of his own monthly meeting, but events proved the choice justified, and from a small beginning, under his wise and tactful leadership, Kingsmead prospered.

In 1906 he married Josephine Taylor (3). There was one child (4). Josephine Hoyland's efficient and sympathetic help assisted greatly in the development of Kingsmead. Co-educational from the beginning, it quickly became both international and inter-denominational. The building of furlough houses increased its usefulness and was a notable contribution to missionary training.

John William Hoyland's sphere of activity extended beyond Kingsmead. He was closely associated with the establishment of nearly all the Selly Oak Colleges, especially West Hill. About 1917 a Central Council was established, with a Senatus or Board of Studies and an Executive Committee to co-ordinate the work of the Colleges and John William Hoyland became chairman of the Council and its committees.

All through his life he had a great gift for selfless sympathy and an ability to shoulder the burdens of others, both with his Adult school members and his work people and with his Kingsmead students. He was generous to failings and always ready to encourage. He had a genuine but unostentatious low opinion of himself, but had clear vision and sound judgement and a keen sense of humour.

He died on 16 February 1927 after two months illness.

HOYLAND, Margaret (1765-1833) born English

Margaret Hoyland, born at Sheepscar near Leeds, was the daughter of Nathaniel and Jane English.

At the age of 21 she became a recorded minister, and was considered 'sound and instructive'. A year later she married Joseph Hoyland of Sheffield. In 1791 they moved to Waterford, Ireland and from here she made many visits all over Great Britain.

In 1828 two out of her three children died, and she moved to Taunton for the benefit of the health of the third.

She was returning to Waterford in 1833 when she was exceedingly seasick, and died a few days after landing.

HUBBERT, John ( - )

Note on the decision of Yearly Meeting concerning the appeal of John Hubbert.

At the time of his appeal John Hubbert caused to be printed a sheet dated "Lambeth, 5 mo.27th, 1817" and headed "A serious check to the Yearly Meeting's Inquisitors in 1817", in which we read that J.H. "was now for many years a sort of Porter to the Yearly Meeting (not a free member)." Three prominent Friends acted as Respondents, viz. Samuel Gurney, Joseph Neatby and Richard Payne. The nature of the appeal does not appear. The appellant considered that "he had been acting on account of the Society and on Truth's behalf." Hubbert printed several other pieces, dated from Islington and Deptford, 1808 to 1831.

HUBBERTHORNE, Richard (1628-1662)

Richard Hubberthorne lived at Yealand, N. Lancashire, and was one of the foremost protagonists of early Quakerism, although he was of low stature, and had an infirm constitution and weak voice. He had been a captain in the Parliamentary army, was of good parentage and liberal education (Lucas, Hist. Warton, c.1720, in MS), and also a preacher. In 1655 there was a public dispute at Knutsford Heath, between Friends and others referred to by Adam Martindale in his Life (Chetham Society, 1845), 'They had got to their champion the famous Richard Hubberthorne... the most rationall calme-spirited man of his judgement that I was ever publickly engaged against.' Hubberthorne did much pioneer work in Norfolk and London. For his interviews with the King, see 384, I, The Friends' Burial Register states that he 'laid down the body in the time of his imprisonment in Newgate, and by the coroner's inquest was found to die naturally' (Barclay, Letters 1841, p.85).

HUDSON, Elizabeth (1721-1783)
WBE under Morris

Born 12mo. (February) 20, 1721, daughter of William Hudson II (1696-1762) and Jane (1699-1759) who were married 8mo. (October) 29, 1717. Elizabeth lived in Philadelphia, and married 1752, Anthony Morris, Jr.

She was a minister, and in 1748 went to Dublin on a preaching tour with Jane Fenn Hoskins. Her death occurred, 5mo. 22, 1783, at the age of sixty two.

The grandfather of Elizabeth Hudson, William Hudson I, was born at York, England 4mo. (June) 3, 1664, and died in Philadelphia 10mo. (December) 16, 1742. He was an Elder among the Friends, and a member of the Governor's Council for Pennsylvania 1704. (Proud, 'Hist. Pa.' 3, 460) He was also in the first Council I. 452.) William Hudson was a signatory to the Quaker's address to Governor Keith in 1725, asking that the ancient Quaker privilage of wearing the hat in Court might be retained. The subject had been brought up by the forcible removal of the hat from Judge Kinsey, a Quaker lawyer of great eminence, afterward Chief Justice. The petitioners obtained their end. The house of William Hudson was at the S.E. corner of Third and Chestnut streets. His first wife, Mary Richardson died in 1708 of her fourteenth child, at the age of thirty-seven. His second wife was Hannah Ogden, then widow of Robert Barber, of Chester, Pa. They were married in 1709, and she lived until September 16, 1759, dying at the great age of ninety nine.

His son, William Hudson II was a useful member of society, and a prominent man in the affairs of his neighbourhood. (Pa. Archives II Ser. Vol. IX, 729, 730, 738. Pa. Magazine of History and Biography, Vol. XVI, 108-110. 'Friends' Miscellany' Vol. IX, p.131) Elizabeth Hudson was familiarly known as 'Betty', and it is possible she is the 'Betty' to whom John Woolman alludes in his letter of 6mo. 13, 1772, from London to his wife, on his arrival.

HUDSON, Thomas (1624?-1697)

Thomas Hudson (Hutson) was a ship-master of London (Swarth. MSS.1.56, 150), and he acted as letter-carrier for Friends between the Old World and the New. He was also useful when on shore, for in 1684 he arranged for 'Canviss to putt Round ye Greate Beed where friends Lodge yt are prisoners in ye Compt<sup>m</sup> in Tooleys Street & is to Remaine there for ye Service of friends yt are prisoners there hereafter' (Minute of Horslydown MM). The entry of burial states that Hudson was of the parish of All-hallows, Lombard Street.
