TREGENZA, Charles Wilfrid (1890 - 1974)

on 1 October 1890

Wilfrid Tregenza was born at Mousehole, in Cornwall into a family of Methodists and after the village school; a scholarship to the then Truro College, he gained an open scholarship to Cambridge (the first Cornish boy to do so) to Downing College, where he obtained a double first in the mathematical tripos and became a "wrangler".

After leaving the university he took up teaching, but on the outbreak of the first world war he registered as a CO and joined the Friends Ambulance Unit. In 1915 with the unit in France he heard the news that other CO's were being sent to France, there to be sentenced to be shot. (This did not take place) He returned to England to face conscription. He was finally discharged from the army with ignominy (the document stating this being one of his valued possessions) and spent time in various prisons, including Dartmoor. His contacts with Quakers increased and being drawn also by his pacifism he joined Friends in about 1918. In March 1920 he married Mary Hill at Jordans FMH. (1)

After the war, he took up teaching again, at Marlborough School, Stroud, then at Ackworth School, and was then appointed as Headmaster of Malmesbury Grammar School. From Malmesbury he was invited to join H.M. Inspectorate of Education as staff inspector in mathematics and for a time was chief inspector. Later, he was chairman of the Butler Committee on education. He was awarded the CBE for his work in education.

During this time he served on the Friends Education Committee from 1953 to 1958/9 representing Leighton Park School, of which he was also for some time a governor.(2)

On his retirement he returned to Cornwall, to the village of Madron, where he threw himself into all kinds of local interests. He took a great part in forming the Penzance & District Christian Council, which soon appointed him as its chairman. Many local dramatic, cultural, antiquarian and preservation societies gained his interest and membership and he was a much sought after speaker in the surrounding district.

He was a tremendous strength to the small meeting in Marazion, and to Cornwall MM. He had a great sense of fun and knew and imparted to others the joy of inward happiness and serenity.

He died at his home in Madron after a short illness on April 10, 1974, aged 83.

TREMBATH, Margaret (1800-1882)

Margaret Trembath was born at Mousehole, Cornwall, in 1800, of Wesleyan parents, and about the age of thirteen she became a member of that body. Shortly afterwards she attended a meeting of Friends, and after had the opportunity of living with two women Friends, Ellinor and Joanna Richards of Marazion. She was received into membership in 1836, and after carrying on a small grocery business at Marazion, she retired in 1847 to Newcastle, where she lived for several years.

After her return to Cornwall, she was recorded as a minister in 1878. 'Her ministry was sound, clear and evangelical, desiring to know nothing amongst us but Jesus Christ and Him crucified. Her message was, however, most frequently to those who had received the Lord Jesus as their Saviour from the guilt of sin; but whom she desired to encourage to yield themselves freely to the Divine will, speaking evidently from personal experience of the power which is given to those, who, like Caleb, wholly follow the Lord'.

Margaret Trembath died at Mousehole on 10 January 1882.

TRITTON, Frederick John (1887-1968)

Fred Tritton was born on 20 November 1887. Although he left school at 12, his great thirst for knowledge led him, in time, to become fluent in German, French, Spanish and Russian; he also acquired a deep knowledge of religious matters.

A conscientious objector during the first world war, he became in 1919 the first secretary of the Council for International Service. This led to his appointment as Assistant Secretary of the Friends Service Council. He joined Kingston upon Thames meeting in 1919, and in 1920 with the appointment of Carl Heath as secretary of FSC, Fred Tritton began his visits to Friends abroad, which he was to continue until his eightieth year. In 1920 or 1921 he married Daisy (1).

Over the years he became for many Friends in Europe the best known English Friend, much beloved because he could discuss their problems with them in their own language. His vocal ministry was much appreciated, coming as it did from his spiritual vitality and concern for other people. He was an elder of Kingston meeting and served for many years on the Premises Committee and as Chairman of the Trustees. His many interests included the Friends Fellowship of Healing and the Seekers' Association.

His faith was Christ-centred, but for him Christ was a living inspiration rather than a doctrine. When, some years before his death, he lost the sight of one eye in an operation, an awareness of the "whole universe charged with the splendour of God" arose from initial deep depression. In old age his intense nature and increasing deafness sometimes made him irritable, but his friendly smile would soon show that his words meant no offence. His outstanding quality was his gift for friendship, and his humility and sense of dependence on God made him recognize the divine qualities latent in others.

He died on 23 August 1968.

" Bob " Trotter was born in about the year 1926.(1) He was the son of Ernest and Mary Trotter who were not at than time members of the Society of Friends.

As a boy he missed regular schooling but when he was aged 14 his parents moved to Middlesborough and sent him to Gt Ayton School. While still a pupil at the school he applied for membership of the Society and was accepted.(2)

While still a youth he was responsible for a project to restore the old Meeting House at Osmotherly to bring it into use as a Young Friends Hostel, in which he and his companions obtained the help of their parents. His own parents also became members of the Society.(3) In later years when at S. Shields as a probation officer he used to take his delinquent boys there for holidays.

In 1948 he married Olive Newby (4) and they seem to have moved to Birmingham for a time but then returned to the north where they lived in Middlesborough, Peterlee and Sunderland. Two children were born to them,(5) His service outside the Society included many years as Quaker minister to Durham Prison, membership of the committee of Sunderland Council of Churches, Probation Service Representative on the National C.A.G. Management Committee. At the time of his death he was probation officer for South Shields.

He was a trustee and treasurer for Sunderland P.M. An elder and trustee of Newcastle M.M. and a member of Ayton School Management Committee.

He died suddenly at the wheel of his car on March 1, 1975 having " lived his forty eight years to the full ".(6)

TRUEBLOOD, Benjamin Franklin (1847-1916)

Benjamin Franklin Trueblood was born at Salem, Indiana, in 1847, of Quaker stock. He was educated at Friends schools and graduated from Earlham College in 1869. For 21 years he was in the forefront of educational work in the Middle West, being successively Principal of Raisin Valley Seminary, Michigan; Professor of English Literature and Governor at Earlham College; Professor of Greek and Latin in Penn College, and one of its founders; President of Wilmington College; and finally President of Penn College.

In 1890 he gave up academic work to devote himself to the promotion of international arbitration. He attended the Second International Peace Congress in London in 1890 and then went to the Continent in order to obtain a thorough knowledge of French. In 1892 he was elected secretary of the American Peace Society, and during his 23 years of office the membership of the Society increased from 300 to 8,000, and the circulation of the Advocate for Peace, which he edited, rose from 1,500 to 11,000. In 1911 the headquarters of the Society was moved from Boston to Washington, where it was able to exercise a much more powerful influence upon the practical politics of the country.

Benjamin Trueblood was also closely concerned with the following international movements: the International Peace Congresses, the Lake Mohonk Conferences on Arbitration, and the first International Conference at the Hague. He wrote extensively and effectively, producing magazine articles, pamphlets, and a valuable book on The Federation of the World. He was also a most eloquent public speaker and was a recorded minister of the Society from very early years.

A man of splendid physical proportions, his mind was well developed and he was a clear and forceful thinker. For at least a generation he was one of the most impressive figures of the Society of Friends both in America and Europe. He died on 26 December 1916, aged 69.

TRUSTED, Alfred (1830-1910)

Alfred Trusted, the son of Benjamin Trusted (1793-1878 qv) and his wife Ann (born) of Hay in Breconshire, was born there on 18 January 1830(1), the youngest surviving child of a large family. From an early age he was charmed by the landscape scenery of the Wye Valley and probably its beauty unfolded to his opening mind much of the greatness and power of God, which he used to talk about later in life. He was educated at Ackworth School from 1840 to 1843(2).

He began his business career as a grocer in Cheltenham and was married in 1860 to Harriet Theobald (1829-1926 qv) of Henley-on-Thames(3); there were three children(4).

He was recorded a minister by Gloucester & Nailsworth Monthly Meeting in 1871, when he was a member of Cheltenham Meeting. His ministry was powerful and his gift in it rather unusual. He spoke as one deeply convinced of his call and he had a great and deep knowledge of the Scriptures; for many years the Holy Spirit had been his teacher. Clear in his own vision and realising the power of the Saviour's love and life of service, he was very convincing and helpful to his hearers.

While living at Cheltenham and later, when he had moved to Copford and then to Lewes, he was frequently engaged in inter-denominational and open-air work. In his country walks he would often enter into conversation with any working men he might meet, always trying to lead their thoughts to their need of God. At Lewes he took a deep interest in the Men's Adult School and only five days before his death he wrote a letter to the Annual School Meeting which was much valued.

Alfred Trusted of Cobury, The Wallands, Lewes died on 26 November 1910, at the age of eighty(5), after a long illness borne with marvellous patience. It brought to an end a life full of Christian fellowship which was valued by the ministers of other denominations and the residents of Lewes who attended his funeral.

TRUSTED, Alfred (1830-1910) 21

Alfred Trusted, born at Hay in 1830, ~~died at Lewes 26.11.1910~~, was the son of Benjamin and Ann Trusted, being the youngest of a large family.

From an early age he was charmed by the landscape scenery of the Wye Valley. He was educated at Ackworth School. In 1860 he married Harriet Theobald of Henley on Thames; they celebrated their golden wedding at Lewes shortly before his death.

He began his business career as a grocer in Cheltenham and it was in this meeting that he was acknowledged as a Minister. He was a regular attender at Meetings for Discipline.

While living at Cheltenham, and later, when at Copford and Lewes, he was frequently engaged in inter-denominational and open-air work. In his country walks he would often enter into conversation with any working men he might meet, always trying to lead their thoughts to their need of God. At Lewes he took a deep interest in the Men's Adult School and only five days before his death he wrote a letter to the Annual School Meeting which was much valued and which will be remembered. He died at Lewes on 26 November 1910. His long illness, borne with marvellous patience, brought to an end a life full of Christian fellowship which was valued by ministers of other denominations and residents of Lewes who attended his funeral.

TRUSTED, Catherine (1824 - 1891)

Catherine Trusted was born on 18 September 1822, daughter of Benjamin (1793 - 1878 qv) and Ann(born , -) (1792)

Trusted of Cusop Green, Herefordshire. The family later moved to Hay, in Brecon county. Her early education was carried on at first by her eldest sister Mary (1818 - 1911 qv) and afterwards at a day-school in the town. At the age of 14 she was sent to a school in Worcester for a year and a half, where she became a diligent scholar.

On leaving Worcester, she undertook the education of the two younger children of Samuel Southall of Leominster (1793-1853). She received help from his wife in judiciously directing her studies. She used to rise at five O'clock to secure two or three quiet hours for mental improvement.

She returned home for a short time and then went to assist Emilie Schnell in her school at Brighton and in 1850 became a teacher at Ackworth School. She valued very much the refined and intellectual companionship of Mary Ann Speciall and Thomas Pumphrey (1802 & 1862), who was then Superintendent of Ackworth.

In 1855, she joined her sister Mary and Rachel Speciall in the Proprietary School at Lewes, Sussex, which later moved to Brighton. The school was given up after R. Speciall's death and M. and C. Trusted removed to Cheltenham to be near their dear father in his declining years. After his decease in 1878 they returned to Lewes, where they continued to do good works. For instance, there was '... a small Band of Hope at the workhouse, in which she taught the boys the advantages of total abstinence, especially its physiological side; and it was surprising how much they remembered from month to month. The Lewes Training Home for girls also claimed a good deal of her time and loving care.'

She died on 22 Aug 9 August 1891 aged 66 years (2).

Edith Ellen Trusted, the youngest daughter of Alfred Trusted (1830-1910 qv) and his wife Harriet (born Theobald, 1829-1926 qv) of Cheltenham, Copford and Lewes, was born at Cheltenham on 10 April 1868(1).

As a girl she attended the old Lewes Independent Quaker Girls' Boarding School and was taught by her aunts Catherine (1825-1891 qv) and Mary (1818-1911 qv) Trusted. The pupils attended Lewes Meeting. She was an invalid since childhood as the result of an accident, but although confined to her room her influence was exceptionally widespread. Her faith was very real and with deep sincerity she wanted to share it with everyone she met. Much of her time was spent in writing verses for religious journals and some of her publications contained her own music and pictures. Although unable to attend meeting, she retained a lively interest in its activities and its members, especially the younger ones.

Edith Ellen Trusted died on 31 January 1956(2).

TRUSTED, Mary (1818-1911)

Mary Trusted, the eldest daughter of Benjamin Trusted (1793-1878 qv) and his wife Ann (born) of Wellington in Somerset, was born there on 13 September 1818(1). As a young girl she helped to educate her younger sisters. She was a born teacher and when she grew up she went to teach the children of William Exton (1786-1851 qv) at Hitchin in Hertfordshire. She spent seventeen years in the household, first as governess and later as companion and maintained a warm and lifelong friendship with the mother and daughters.

In 1855 she went to Lewes, where for more than twenty years, assisted by her sister Catherine (1825-1891 qv) and their friend Rachel Speciall (1825-1877 qv), she carried on a girls' school. In 1874, following a severe outbreak of fever at Lewes, the school moved to Brighton. "She seldom spoke to her girls directly of personal religion, yet occasionally, when saying good-night in their rooms, would drop a word on such a subject as the duty and privilege of prayer, which probably made a greater impression from its rareness, and the evident concern under which she spoke." (Testimony)

On the death of Rachel Speciall the school was closed and Mary and Catherine Trusted moved to Cheltenham, but later returned to Lewes. During the busy days at the school the sisters kept up their interest in outside work and on her return to Lewes Mary Trusted acted as secretary to a small Girls' Home; she also showed a warm interest in the Bible Society. She was for a number of years clerk to the Women's Monthly Meeting and was also an elder, taking her share in the meetings for discipline in her district. Her quiet and methodical habits enabled her to accomplish a great deal of work, including sewing and knitting for others.

Mary Trusted of 6 Priory Crescent, Lewes, died on 6 May 1911, at the age of ninety two(2).

TUBBS, Robert (1718-1757)

Robert Tubbs was born in 1718 in the parish of Haddenham, and was brought up in the principles of the Church of England. In his 25th year he became a convinced Friend, and in about 1746 he became 'a lively Minister of the Gospel of Christ', labouring faithfully in this service, and travelling in the Northern counties as well as in Norfolk and Suffolk to publish truth. He was diligent in attending Meeting for Worship and for Discipline, stirring up Friends and holding them together by the unity of his words and his life.

He was a tender, loving husband and an affectionate father, concerned for the welfare of his own children as well as for that of other young people, and those of other persuasions. He died in his prime in his 40th year, a minister for 11 years, and was buried in the Friends burial ground at Haddenham, on 4 November 1757

TUCKER, Alfred George (1889 - 1978)

Alfred Tucker was born on May 10, 1889, perhaps in Exeter. He trained as a teacher in Isleworth and as a conscientious objector was drawn to the Society of Friends, which he joined in about 1918. In 1916 he had married Isabel Irene Adams.(1) There were two daughters of the marriage, for a time they must have moved to Lancashire for in 1920 he represented Lancashire Friends at the All Friends Conference. In 1921 he took up a post at Simon Langton's School, a school for boys at Canterbury as teacher of French and remained there until his retirement. There, in 1933 when the two girls were only young children his wife died. Of her, he wrote - "All our spiritual pilgrimage was shared in every detail."

He was a great strength to the meeting in Canterbury, serving it as clerk for some years, he became clerk of Kent QM in 1936 and continued in that service right through the difficult war years until 1948. In 1937 he again attended the All Friends Conference in Philadelphia representing Kent QM. He also became secretary to the QM Extension Committee. He was meticulous in detail, at times almost pedantic, but he was also a Friend who exuded cheerfulness and was full of love and friendliness.

He recommended early retirement under concern, a practice he himself followed, he was a keen Esperantist and an active member of War Resisters International. From 1936 he developed his concern to visit Friends and sympathisers in France and Belgium and in other parts of Europe, sometimes under the auspices of the Friends World Committee for Consultation, often on his own resources with what backing he could get from others. He travelled simply and with little luggage to spread friendship and Quaker ideals and practices. He attended several Border Meetings of Friends in Europe, made countless visits of concern and visited the Waldensian Centre of Agape, he also attended a world pacifist conference in Japan. In about 1958 he took upon himself the task of visiting personally enquirers from Spain who had contacted Friends House and in several visits he brought together the various seekers, establishing two groups, one in Palma, Mallorca, the other in Barcelona. He helped the new groups in all sorts of ways, with administrative details and teaching the new clerk how to write minutes and keep accounts, he linked Barcelona Meeting to France YM. He also took the opportunity while visiting Friends in Spain to visit discreetly the families of political prisoners on behalf of Amnesty International. As an Esperantist he also lectured to international gatherings as far afield as Bulgaria and to the world pacifist conference already mentioned at Hiroshima.

In Canterbury, outside his service for the Society, he was secretary of the Free Church Council for some years and during the war conducted services in French every Sunday in the Huguenot Chapel in the Cathedral, he also formed the Canterbury French Circle. For these services the French Government in 1936 awarded him the decoration of 'Officier de l'ordre des Palmes Academiques' and after the war in 1948 appointed him an 'Officier de l'instruction publique.'

He suffered a stroke the day after his removal to Cirencester in 1967 and another more severe in the following year, but he made a slight recovery and was able to keep up his interests and some writings. In 1974 he moved again, this time to Nottingham to be near his other daughter and took up residence at 'Westdale' the Quaker Home for the Elderly, where his patient acceptance of limitations, his humour and smile and his readiness to help others made a great impression upon everyone.

He died on December 11, 1978 aged 89.

Francis J. Tucker was born at Buckley in south-east London on 31 August 1905, the son of Joseph and Fanny Tucker.

The curvature of the spine from which Francis suffered led to his attending Sibford School, where he remained until the sudden death of his father in 1920. He left school, took a secretarial course, and joined a City firm of canvas exporters, with whom he remained until his appointment to Friends Central Office. He served as a member of the Society's administrative staff from January 1944

"His family moved to Clapham Common and joined Wandsworth Meeting. Later he and his mother moved to Cheam, where they joined Sutton Meeting. He served both meetings in turn as clerk and overseer. On his mother's death he settled at Camberwell, and joined Westminster Meeting. Here, again, he was Preparative Meeting clerk, elder and overseer; and for some years was assistant clerk to Monthly Meeting."

He was keenly interested in sport, in music, in natural history and in people. Francis Tucker died on 30 April 1966. He was unmarried.

TUCKETT, Alice (1858-1928) born Fox

Alice Fox, the daughter of Dillworth Crewdson Fox (1825-1887) and his wife Mary Augusta (born Buckham) of Wellington in Somerset, was born there on 20 April 1858(1). As a child she was brought up in a rather narrow school, but she stood out for herself in independent thought and passed through various phases of development. As a girl the poetry of Robert Browning meant much to her and she had also a lively interest in all scientific progress.

She trained as a nurse at St Bartholomews Hospital in London and afterwards took up district nursing in Wellington, where she was greatly beloved. After her mother's death in 1894 she and her sister Annie went out for a time to their brother in New Zealand and it was there that her cousin Francis Fox Tuckett (1834-1913 qv) followed her and married her in 1896; the marriage was childless(2).

Her husband was an experienced traveller and a distinguished man of science and their home at Frenchay in Gloucestershire was filled with rare and beautiful treasures from all parts of the world. Both she and her husband were keen antiquarians and took a great interest in the Archaeological Societies of their own and neighbouring counties. On her marriage Alice Tuckett installed a grand piano for the first time in a Quaker house and her music, although she had little time to enjoy it, was a source of pleasure and refreshment, as was her lovely garden.

Like her husband, she worked hard in the interests of her fellowss and the Hambrook Village Hospital and the District Nursing Association owed much to her constant sympathy and help. For years she gave a great deal of time to the Mary Carpenter Home for deficient girls, of which she was treasurer until its chose, and to the Poor Law Homes at Dowmend. For some years during the first world war she used her knowledge of nursing in the service of the local V.A.D. hospital. All these claims were a great tax on her strength, but they were willingly and gladly met.

Perhaps the work closest to her heart was in connection with the Adult School movement, into which she threw untiring energy and enthusiasm. She was a member of the Women's Committee of the Bristol Adult School since its inception in 1908 and president from 1918, only resigning due to illness. She took a deep interest in the Guest House at Penscot, but it was her own school at Frenchay, of which she was president for thirty years, to which she gave her constant love and thought. All the treasures of her well stored mind and the many experiences of her foreign journeys were woven into her lessons, which were yet so simple and practical that they met the needs of everybody. She had a wonderful combination of great natural dignity and personal humility which made her approach people with both deference and friendliness and she never spared herself in the service of her neighbours.

The kind of impression she quite unconsciously made was shown after her death, when the busmen on the route from Bristol sent a wreath "with love and respect", saying it must be love as well as respect, for it was not because of the socks she gave at Christmas, but just for herself, that they loved her; there was no-one like her.

Her home, which after her husband's death she shared with her sister Annie, was a centre of hospitality. She was never actually a member of the Society, but she attended Frenchay Meeting for many years and was in close touch with Friends(3). Her wide sympathies and tolerant, large hearted understanding of many different points of view helped her to work happily with people of very varying ideas. The strong deep current of her inner life was like a river that was constantly being fed by a stream of spiritual, intellectual and artistic influences and continually giving itself out for the enrichment of others. God, and the things of the spirit, were what mattered most in her life and her teaching of the Bible was robust and fearless.

Alice Tuckett of Frenchay died on 25 August 1928, at the age of seventy(4). A large number of friends gathered in the village church and afterwards at the Friends burial ground.

TUCKETT, Francis Fox (1834-1913)

Francis Tucket F.R.G.S., the son of Francis Tucket (1802-1868 qv) and his wife Mariana (born Fox, 1807-1863 qv) of Frenchay near Bristol, was born there on 10 February 1834(1). He spent several years of his boyhood with his grandmother Elizabeth Fox (1768-1848 qv) at Falmouth, where he went with his cousins to the school kept by Lovell Squire (1809-1892 qv). After his grandmother's death he returned home and went to Mr Exley's school at Cotham, in company with the Frys and others who remained his friends for life. He was an intelligent and receptive child and from his mother gained a love of reading which remained with him throughout his life, and from his father a love of nature and travel. To his uncles Robert Were Fox (1789-1877 qv), Charles Fox (1797-1878 qv) and Alfred Fox (1794-1874 qv) he owed his deep interest in scientific pursuits and discoveries. With these singular advantages for the formation of a taste for literature, art and science, Francis Tucket stored his mind with accurate information, which he was able to impart with modesty and charm, making him a lively and interesting companion.

He entered his father's business, but gave it up after his father's death and devoted much time to reading and travel. Physically strong and capable of great endurance, he found an outlet for his energies in mountain exploration in the south of Europe. He visited Switzerland, the Dauphine, the Tyrol and the Dolomites, combining climbing with scientific observations of heights, temperatures and map making. At a time when official maps of mountain regions were very incomplete he undertook a careful triangulation of the Dolomites, a work of considerable hardship and endurance which strained even his physical powers and affected his health for some years. His name was known and revered from one end of the Alps to the other and it is perpetuated in the naming of some of the peaks and passes in the Eastern Alps. His explorations in the Statian Alps were recognised by King Victor Emmanuel II, who conferred on him the decoration of Cavaliere di S.S.Maurizio and Lazzaro. Although not quite one of the founders of the Alpine Club he joined it in 1859, within two years of its commencement.

His interest in archaeology led him to visit Rome, Greece and Egypt and he was able to make valuable contributions to the archaeological societies of Gloucester and Somerset. He took a keen interest in the life of Bristol and in particular in his own village of Frenchay, which was his home throughout his life. The village hospital owed much to his interest and support and he gave the site for, and promoted the building, of, a village hall. He was regarded as the village counsellor in all matters requiring tact and wisdom. Although not a public man in the sense of being a member of public bodies, he was a wise and active helper in many of the great undertakings of the city of Bristol and all objects of local interest and benevolence were sure of his generous help. He founded the school at Frenchay, was president of the Men's School and his wife presided over the Women's School. His wide experience of travel and of scientific interest enabled him to illustrate the lessons in a most arresting fashion.

He was married in New Zealand in 1896 to Alice Fox (1858-1928 qv) of Wellington in Somerset(2), but the marriage was apparently childless(3). His wife was his companion in all his later journeys and when active climbing became too much for him his love of travel took him to all parts of the world. He went round the world three times, besides visiting India, Burma, China

Japan, South Africa, the West Indies, the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and many other places. His travels and scientific attainments brought him into close touch with many of the leading scientists and literary men of his time, in whose work he took the deepest interest, but in an age when scientific materialism was dominant he never allowed the tide to carry him off the rock of Christ.

Although a devoted member of the Society of Friends, Francis Tuckett never spoke in meetings for worship and only at the very close of his life consented to accept the office of elder. He was always reticent in religious matters, but his inner life was founded on strong convictions. He possessed a genius for friendship and was one who adorned the doctrines of Christ.

In January 1813 he and his wife set out on his third journey round the world and although he was then in his eightieth year he was able to derive the maximum amount of interest and pleasure from it. However, he became ill shortly after his return home in June. Francis Fox Tuckett of Frenchay died, after a brief illness, on 20 June 1913, at the age of seventy nine(4).

If PDT's age at death was in fact 63 and not 67 (see note 9) then it is necessary to assume the death of the PDT born 1749 and the birth of a second child named PDT about 1753: this would have to be a child of James Tuckett's second marriage and could not easily have come between Mary (b 9 Oct 1752) and Elias (b 19 March 1754)
- 2 Described as haberdasher in the entry for his first marriage (1774), as grocer in that for the birth of the surviving child (1781), and as merchant in that for his second marriage (1800)
- 3 The marriage was at Bristol on 2 August 1774: he is described as of Bristol, haberdasher, son of James and Anna Tuckett of Looe in Cornwall; she is described as daughter of John and Elizabeth Champion of London (Bristol & Somerset QM Marriages Digest)
- 4 Bristol & Somerset QM Burials Digest records the interment of an unnamed (perhaps stillborn) child on 12 August 1775.

TUCKETT, Sarah (1759-1840)

Sarah Tucket, the daughter of James Tucket (1721/2-1765 qv) and his second wife Mary (born Debelle, 1723-1797 qv) of Looe in Cornwall, was born there on 20 October 1759(1). She spent the greater part of her life in Looe. She was a lively child, but she was drawn towards religion by the influence of Sarah Stephenson (1738-1802 qv), while she was still at school in Melksham.

When she was about twenty two she spent some time at Bristol and at various times from 1791 onwards she visited Friends in England, Scotland and Ireland, the last visit of this kind being to Ireland in 1818. She first appeared in the ministry in 1824 and was recorded a minister about two years later.

She was a regular attender at meetings for discipline, often under great infirmity of body, and towards the latter part of her life she was only able - and that with considerable difficulty - to get out once a year to attend quarterly meeting, when it was held nearby.

In February 1840 an attack of influenza lowered her health considerably. During her last illness she was assailed by great and painful religious doubt, but she died at peace(2) on 15 May 1840, at East Looe, at the age of eighty(3).

TUCKETT, Sarah (1759-1840)

Sarah Tucket was born on 21 October 1759 at Looe where she lived for almost the whole of her life. She was of a naturally volatile disposition but received early religious impressions from Sarah Stephenson while at school at Melksham. When she was aged about 22 she spent some time at Bristol and in 1824 she first appeared in the ministry, being recorded some two years later. At various times from 1791 onwards she visited Friends in various parts of England, Scotland and Ireland, the last visit of this kind being to Ireland in 1818.

She was a regular attender at meetings for discipline, often under great infirmity of body, though towards the latter part of her life she was ~~now~~ only able - and that with considerable difficulty - to get out once a year to attend Q.M. when held nearby. In February 1840 an attack of influenza produced a general effect on her health and she died on 15 May 1840 aged upwards of 80 years. Her body was interred in Friends burial ground Looe.
